Well. I really got to know you pretty well this past year. I guess you could really know quite a few secrets! Seriously, though, you have wonderful change in personality (all in all) never guess you're at the top now & hope that your seniors are practically staying there. Cause
I feel that (ha ha) they're not! (ha ha) Good! Stay happy &

BOB SPENCER

JOHN F. KENNEDY

In Memoriam

Life in the United States of America goes on this morning. But there is something wrong. Our friend, our leader, our President, is dead.

He was admired. He was respected. And now he is no more.

His courage was undeniable, his love of country came to be expressed in dedicated words and deeds. John F. Kennedy belonged to all of us. No one, nothing, is the same anymore—he's gone.

Our people had faith in this man, faith enough to place our country in his hands. He responded with greatness, a greatness cut short by tragedy. His place in history has been achieved forever.

The murder, insidious crime that it was, will live in infamy. His death is the nation's loss, the world's loss, our loss.

From us passes a leader of democratic ideals. President John F. Kennedy fought for and defended liberty, and as it is becoming increasingly clear—died for it. There were those who opposed him, who never shared his vision—but there were those who loved him, and admired him, and believed in him.

John F. Kennedy, the man, is dead. But his legend will go on as long as free men live.

"And so, my fellow American: ask not what your country can do for you. Ask what you can do for your country . . . With a good conscience our only sure reward, with history the final judge of our deeds, let us go forth to lead the land we love, asking His blessing and His help, but knowing that here on earth God's works must truly be our own."

The Best

For the Chronicle it has been a year of change and transition; the beginning of a new look in the yearbook and the end of more than a year's preparation and planning. As you view this book some of these changes will be easily recognizable. Others more meaningful and important will not meet your first glance.

There are two basic themes which have played a large part in the yearbooks of recent years, tradition vs. traditionalism, and yearbook vs. classbook. It is up to each Chronicle Staff to decide where its product will be placed along the continuum, and this year's yearbook takes this opportunity to clearly outline its position. During the past year we have discussed and observed many yearbook innovations and the general trend in progressive yearbook design with many opinionated experts. We have seen examples of truly great yearbooks and have recognized both their good and bad points and out of this has evolved our own yearbook. It is a symbol of change and innovation. There are two major differences which we feel distinguish this book from any other yearbook. First it is the first yearbook to assert itself as such. In the past the Chronicle was a classbook or a record of the activities of the class with the exclusion of anything extraneous. It was constructed mainly and in some cases totally for the benefit and enjoyment of the Senior class. For the past decade there has been a general departure from this end. In order to make this yearbook more meaningful to the rest of the school the Chronicle has become a true yearbook, devoted to the graphic representation of the school year. And this we state as our purpose. We intend this Chronicle as a yearbook and have endeavored to make it more representative of the school at large. The second big change which is evident in the Chronicle is the movement away from traditionalism to tradition. There is much of the nostalgic past in any yearbook, but a great deal of it is not vital and all too much of it is meaningless. For instance, each year it is customary to devote four or five pages to candid shots of the Seniors; these have meaning from the start for only a small minority of the Senior class, and as time passes on, lose even that. These candid shots have been eliminated. Tradition for the sake of tradition is meaningless. Improvement should never be prevented by an unfounded devotion to the past.

To you of the class, this yearbook may feel strange and unusual for we have tried to do in one year what it has taken other schools ten. Our purpose in changing many of the things which you have taken to expect lies not in any selfish desire to force on you our wishes and personal tastes, but rather to present to you and the school the best possible and most meaningful representation of this year. We feel we have opened the door to the future of even more improvements, and we hope that next year's Chronicle staff will correct our mistakes and continue on what we have started.

Dedication

ROBERT DE BISHOP

If we were to prepare a list of words to describe a class advisor, we might include those such as organizer, common denominator, leader, worker, and friend.

As our Class Advisor, Mr. Robert DeBishop has shown to us that he is worthy of all these words and many more. He has shown himself to be an organizer and a worker in all of our class activities; as a leader and a friend in everything, to everyone. He also serves as the common denominator between our class, the Administration, and the rest of Faculty. This vital link, this organization, leadership, and friendship has been the major factor in making our class, the Class of 1964, a most successful and rewarding effort.

We try to show our appreciation through some medium, in this case the printed word. But it is a very limited medium, and it is futile to try and express our gratitude with these few words or even with this entire yearbook. To you it serves as a memory of the Class of 1964 — to us it serves as a reminder of your dedication.

MR. GERALD GINGRAS

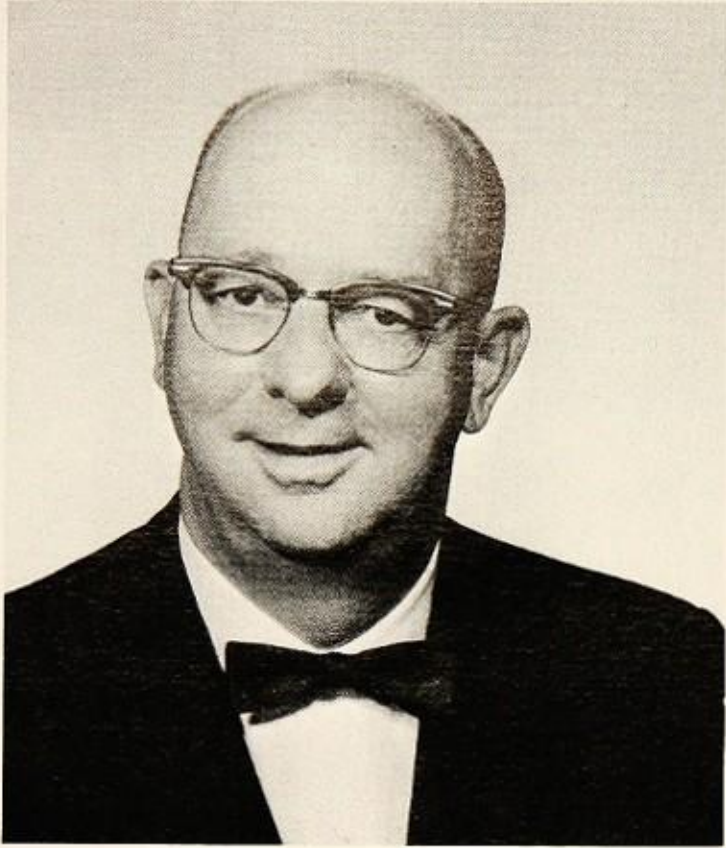

The class of '64 is indebted to Mr. Gerald Gingras for the assistance he has given us. For his work as our freshman and sophomore class advisor, we can offer only our most sincere thanks. We will never forget the man who gave up hours after school for us and our class. We also thank him for being a friend and mentor during two trying years at Southington High. It was under his guidance that a group of individuals became a class and that class became a successful functioning unit.

It was not long before we, the staff of the 1964 Chronicle, realized what a difficult task lay before us in preparing a yearbook. Your dedicated assistance and invaluable guidance proved to be a major factor in making it possible for us to publish this year's Chronicle. We only hope that future staffs may benefit from your aid as we did. We feel that we are speaking not only for our own, but also for those past and future yearbook staffs when we sincerely say "Thank you", Mr. Joyal.

Guidance

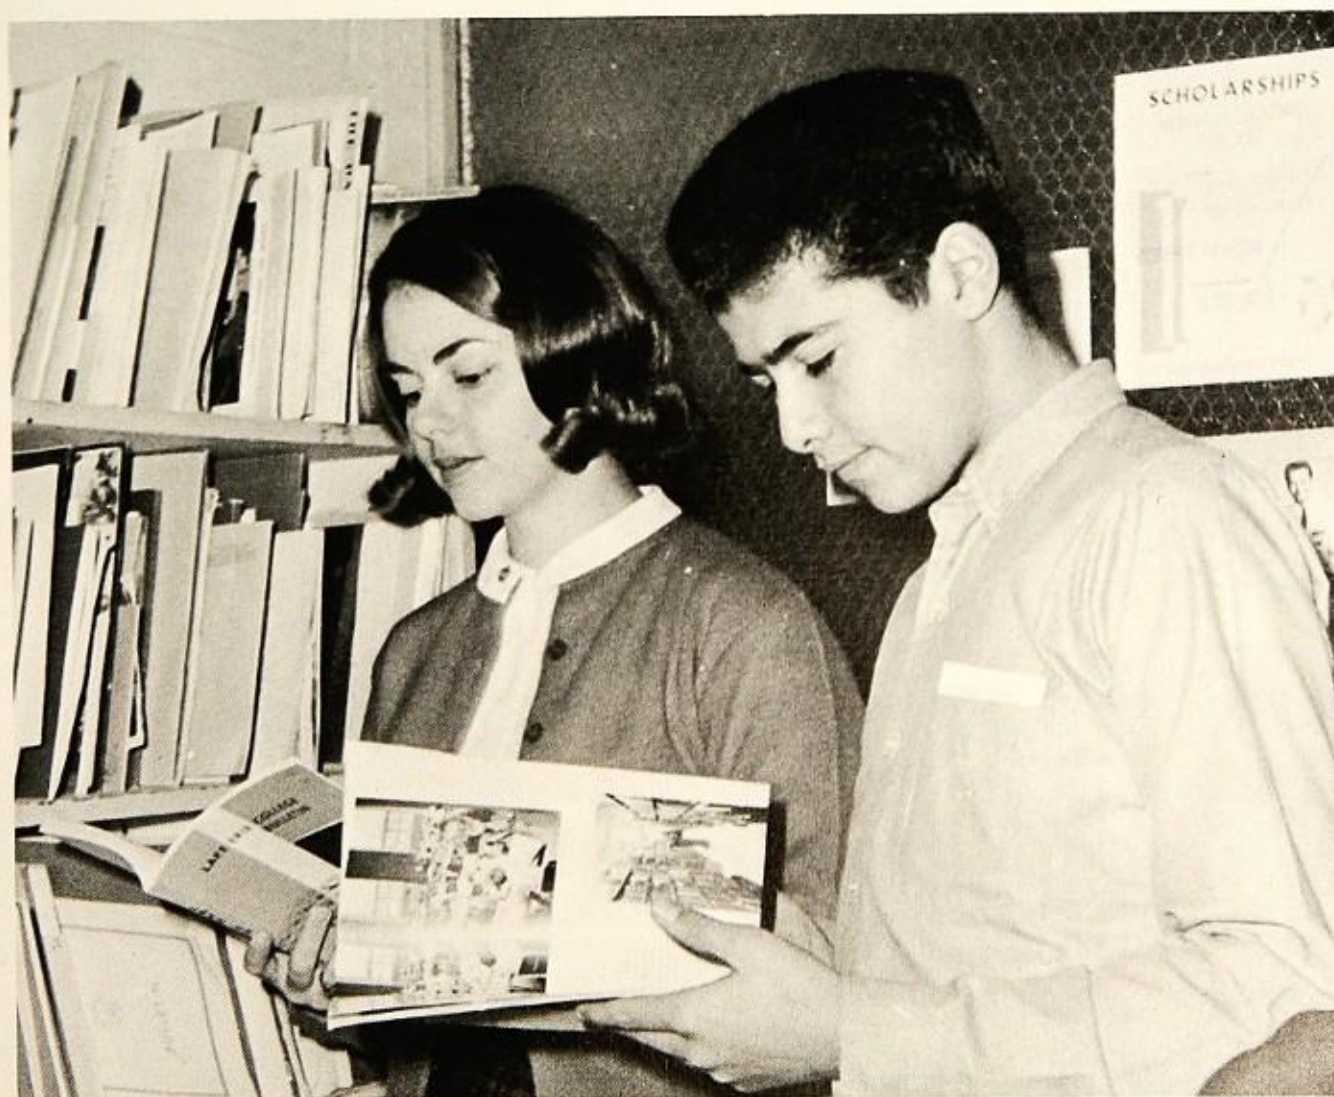

MR. WILLIAM SNOW

MRS. JEWELL CARTER

Guidance is probably the most important phase of high school activity. The department, headed by Mr. Raymond Walsh is in its fifth year of service. Each year the department must deal with almost a hundred and fifty college students. In addition, each February Mr. Walsh and his two assistants, Mrs. Carter and Mr. Snow must aid approximately fifteen hundred underclassmen in the selection of their courses. There are two major objectives for Guidance at Southington; to help students prepare for the future by caring for their needs and interests, and to serve as mentor and personal aid for each individual. With the recent expansion of the department to three full time counselors this goal has been reached. For the college bound students this means many hours of discussion with both college representatives and with Mr. Walsh in the fall. For the student not going on to college it means talking over future plans and sources of employment.

The Guidance Department has been entrusted with preparing students to face future life, and in five years it has done its job well.

The Chronicle of the World War One era, such as the one pictured above, was merely a 7" by 9" classbook. It was published as a special "Graduation Number" by the Emblem. It contained no pictures at all but it did have a class will, class history, and a few other small features such as the valedictory speech. It was not yet a true independent yearbook with a separate staff but it was rather a feature issue of the school newspaper. It had not yet come to be called by its own title, "The Chronicle."

The language department offers three romantic languages—Spanish, French and Italian, one classical language—Latin, and one Germanic language—German.

New developments are the addition of Italian I, Latin IV, and French III into the 1963-1964 curriculum. Italian II may be offered next year.

A growing emphasis of languages is evidenced by the increased enrollment in the classes. Classes are filled to capacity. This is in part due to an additional requirement in the college preparatory curriculum that makes it mandatory for the freshman student to elect a language.

The department has a unique teaching device—the language laboratory. Each booth in the sound-proof lab is equipped to enable the student to listen to tapes and make his own recordings. He can detect errors in his speech and develop his pronunciation skills.

In the first and second years of the language classes, the basic rudiments are learned. As the student advances this knowledge is applied more extensively through the translation of sundry writings and noted literary works. The student is also familiarized with the culture from which the language comes by studying the land, the people, and their customs.

Mathematics has changed greatly in the last four years. Text books geared to the new approach and teachers imbued with the spirit of modern math are a vital part of the curriculum. This math is axiomatic, deductive and abstract. It does not replace the classical mathematics, but generalizes, unifies, and deepens the understanding of it. Arithmetic, Geometry and analysis are as important as ever.

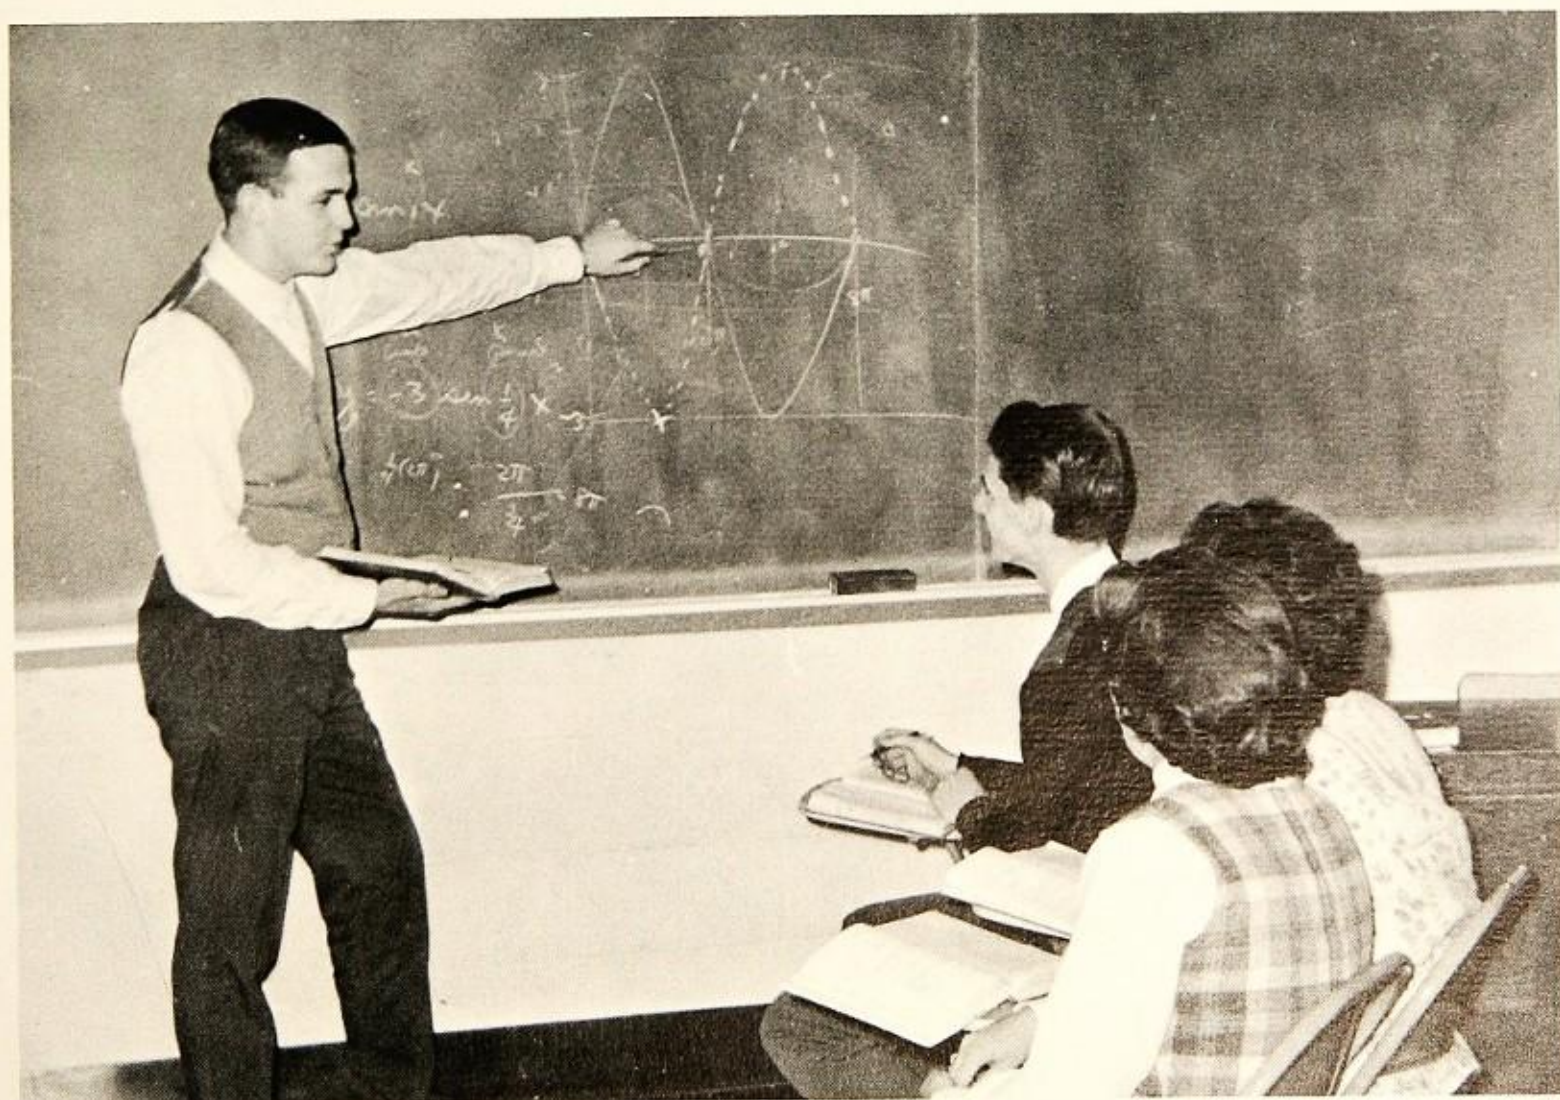

During the school year 1963-1964, a group of approximately 130 freshmen began the study of mathematics emphasizing these new approaches. By the end of their senior year, they will have experienced an adequate mathematics background.

The various math courses include subjects from Business Math to Trigonometry. While math in the form of pure mathematics has reached heights of abstraction, it has remained practical by multiplying and extending its applications. Automation has increased the need for mathematical knowledge and skilled labor. At SHS, mathematics tries to relate more and more intimately man's activities in industry, social life, science, and philosophy.

Since Sputnik and the rapid chain of events which swept us into the space age, science has expanded its foothold in secondary school education. From a position of relative unimportance and neglect to a position of priority; that's the story of science — at Southington and throughout the nation.

Science is a four year program at Southington High. Freshmen are offered introductory courses in Earth Science and General Science. As sophomores they study the structure, reproduction, growth, and classification of plants and animals along with their evolutionary significance—biology. The Junior and Senior years are devoted to the lab sciences, Chemistry, advanced biology, and physics. The atomic theory, ionization, electricity, light, radioactivity, along with basic mechanics are taught in an increasingly complex display of scientific method and principle.

Science at Southington is expanding, broadening and overflowing with students of promise and ability. In the past few years the prominence of some noteworthy members has gained our school state and national recognition. We have had two National Science Fair winners and we carry away high honors at the State Fair every year.

Science at Southington is moving forward and there are no signs of it slowing down.

The Social Studies department includes eight courses. Freshmen may take Civics, a study of the community and Citizenship, or Ancient History. The latter helps students to get a better understanding of ancient and medieval times in preparation for Modern History.

Students who study Economic Geography, a sophomore course, learn about the land and people of the earth. World History, another sophomore course, gives students a better understanding of other races and nations as well as their views and actions. The third tenth year course is Modern History. Students in this course study the major political and economical developments of the past four hundred years.

All students must take U. S. History in their Junior year. This course is designed to give the student an understanding and appreciation of the American way of life.

The two fourth year courses are Problems of American Democracy and Sociology. These courses instill a respect and appreciation for our way of life and make the student aware of existing social problems. Sociology is a new course this year and is much like the introductory course offered in college.

At Southington High School the future secretary gains the basic skills and necessary background to enter the business world. Courses in shorthand introduce her to a fascinating new language of signs and symbols to simplify the taking of dictation, while bookkeeping trains her to keep complex financial records. She learns to skillfully operate office machines such as electric typewriters, calculators and duplicating machines, while she learns the importance of a background in Economics. She puts all this knowledge together in her Office Practice class where actual working conditions are simulated.

Room 110 is truly a "Business World" on the student level. Faculty requests, Emblem production, and the general bustle of students working to meet deadlines, form some of the main points of activity.

At least one third of the class of 1964 is enrolled in at least one business subject. Since 1959, the Department Staff has increased from two to six teachers. More and more recognition is being given to the Business Department as it increases in importance to all SHS students.

“... to speak, to write, to read more effectively...”

— Mrs. Avis Churchill

The English Department, the largest in the school, includes three types of four year courses.

Academic English, planned for college bound students has an emphasis on American and English literature and writing as a means of expression. Standard English is similar to Academic English in course content but it differs in that it serves a wider range of students. General English stresses grammar and writing.

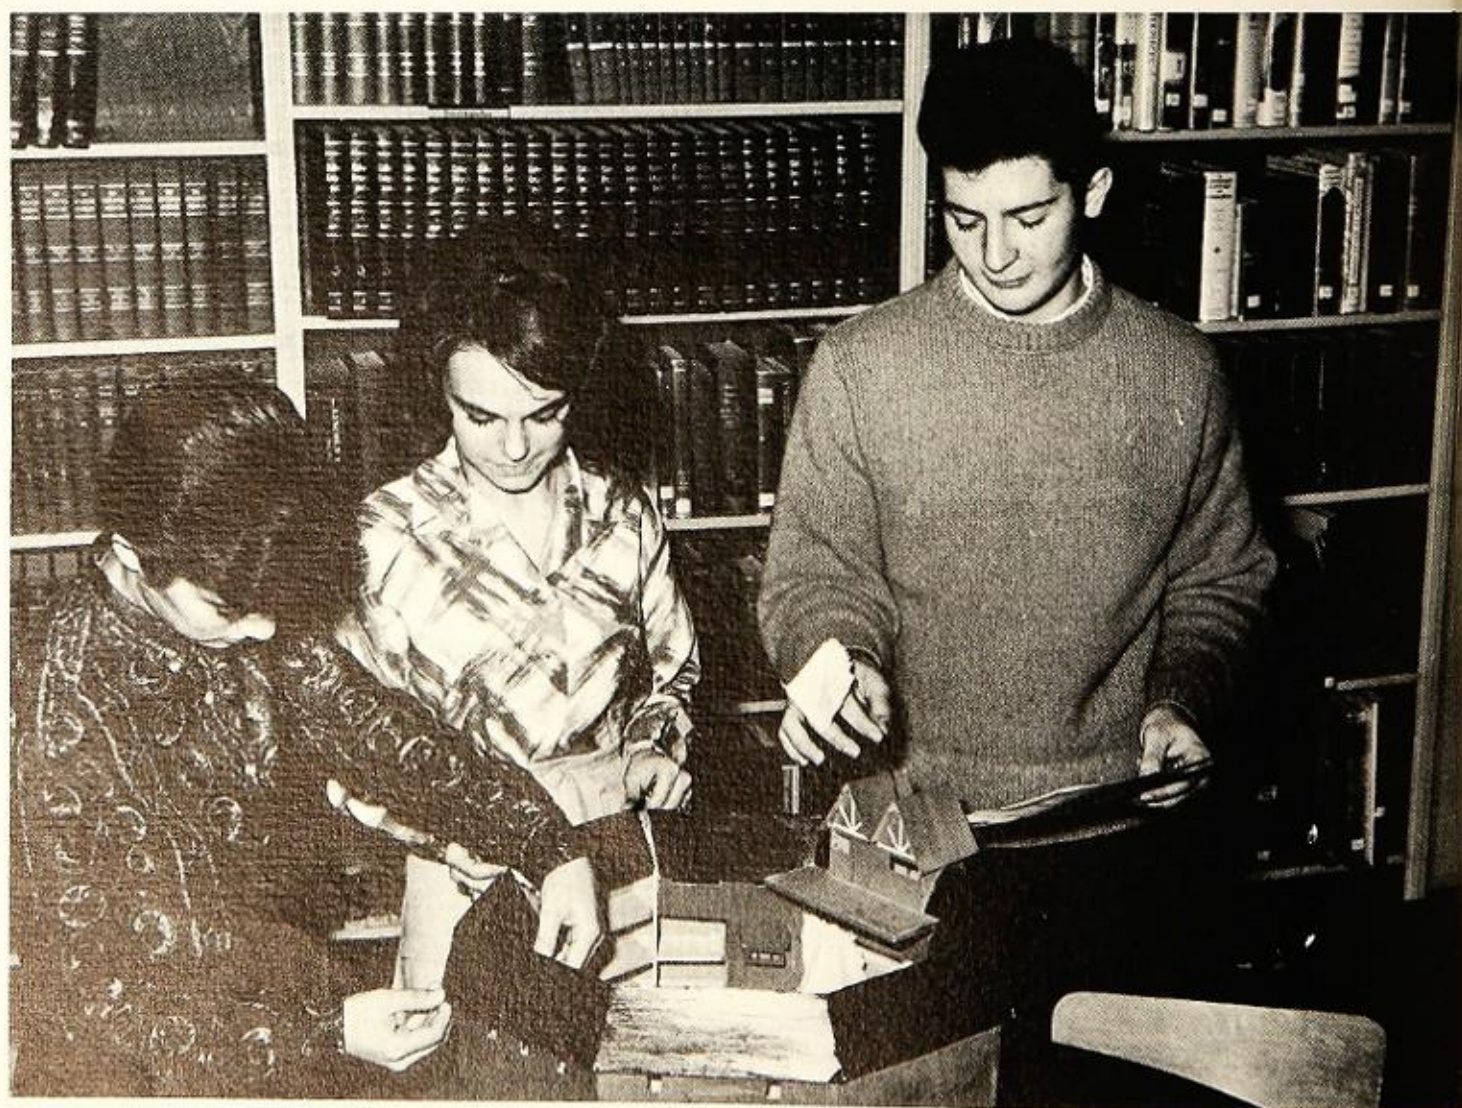

In 1962, two electives were added to the English Curriculum. Creative Writing is offered to seniors with an eighty-five average or higher in English. This course gives specialized training in the rudiments of rhetoric.

Public Speaking, offered to seniors, gives the student experience in expressing himself verbally.

Students in Mr. Gillan's Creative Writing class "tear apart" a paper.

The leader and sole instructor of the Music department is Mr. Conrad Gozzo. He obtained his Bachelor and Master of Music Degrees at Boston University. Here in his fourth year he teaches Band, Orchestra, Chorus, and Music Appreciation. He is also the advisor to the Minstrels.

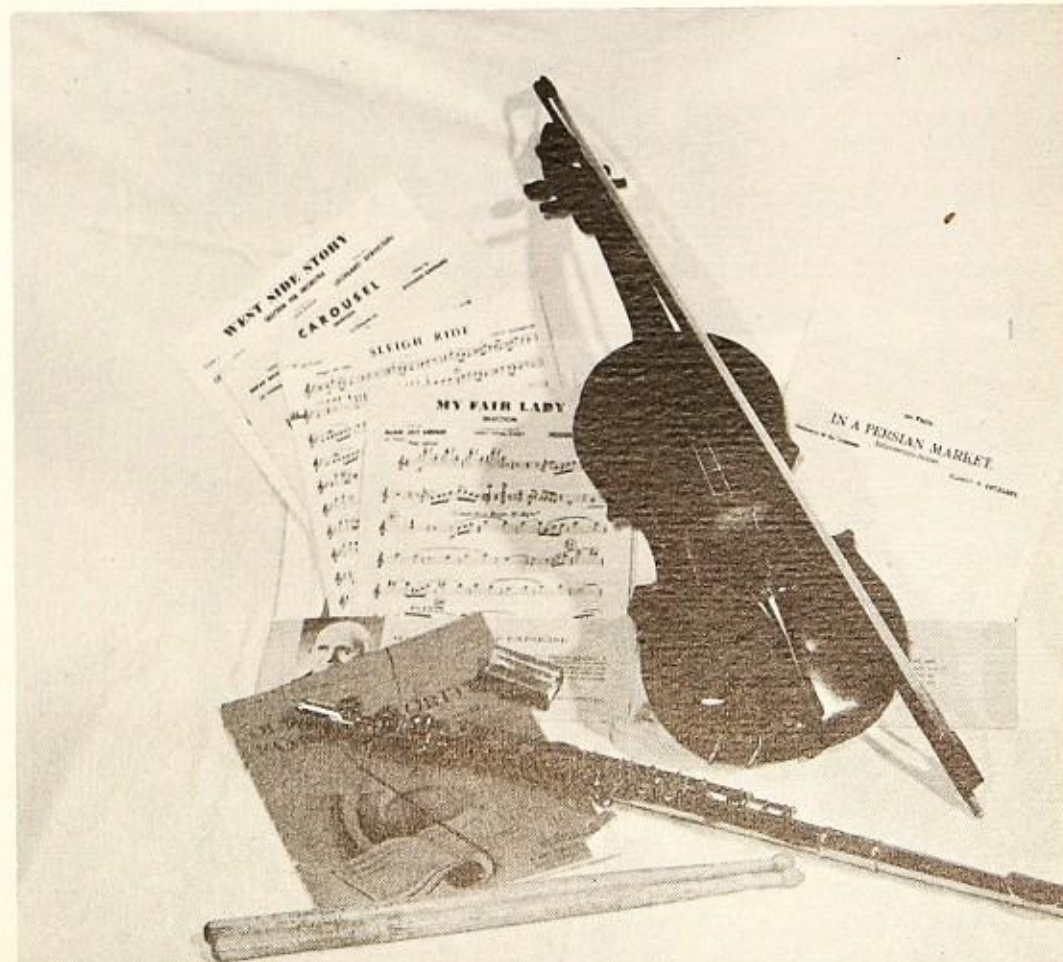

During the last few years, the Music Department has grown considerably, both in courses offered and in the number of students enrolled.

Band and Orchestra are offered to all students who are fairly proficient in playing some instrument. Both are full credit courses and have additional requirements outside of classroom attendance. Marching and concert attendance are examples of mandatory activities.

Beginners Band is offered to students interested in learning how to play a brass or reed instrument. Mixed Chorus and Girls' Chorus are both half-credit courses that meet twice a week. Mandatory concert attendance is a part of these courses.

Music Appreciation, open to Juniors and Seniors teaches musical history and theory. All courses in the Music Department are taught by Conrad A. Gozzo.

The family is the most essential unit, yet few areas are so taken for granted. Home Economics is a course to fulfill this basic requirement — to prepare high school girls for family living. The course is as prodigious as it is necessary. The curriculum comprises units in foods and nutrition, housing, home furnishings and home equipment, clothing, child care, growth and development, family health, family economics, personal and family relationships of the family, and other advantages. The problems studied are derived from the needs and interests of the girls served in this given area of education. The course provides experiences which will fit girls for better adjustments and greater service to those with whom she has contact in her home, school, and community.

Vocational Agriculture

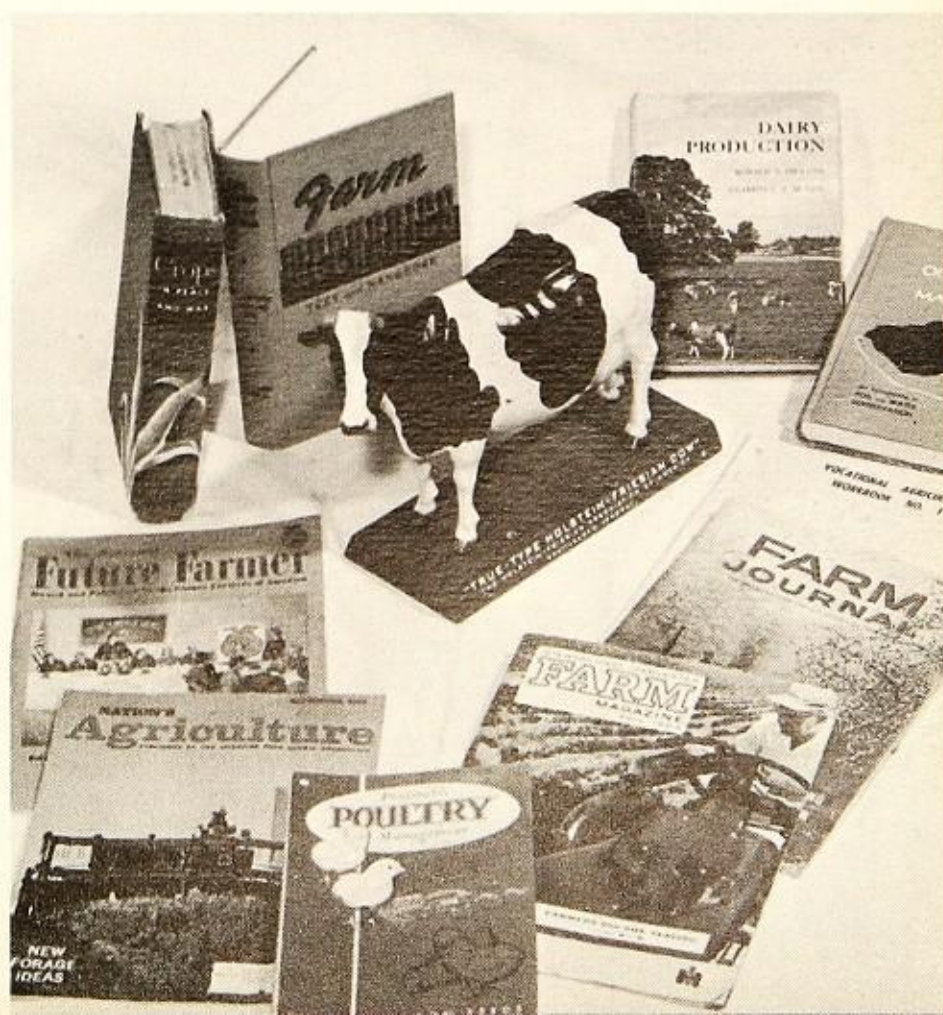

KENNETH C. FARMER

Mr. Farmer, head of the Agriculture department, has been here for eight years. He attended Pennsylvania State University, receiving his Bachelor of Science and Master of Education Degrees. He teaches Agriculture classes at Southington High and is advisor to the local chapter of the Future Farmers of America.

The Agriculture department at Southington High prepares its students for leadership in agriculture and in the many phases of it such as conservation of our nation's resources and the protection of our wildlife. It readies its students for the responsibilities of creating better farms and feeding a nation of almost two hundred million people.

Today being a farmer takes more than knowing how to milk a cow or build a barn. Today's farmers are businessmen, leaders in their communities, and conservationists, as well as capable and highly skilled managers of a farm.

Vocational Agriculture Center

All too often when people think of agriculture, they think only of a farmer plowing his field or milking a cow; yet this is not the true picture. Agriculture today is a highly complex mechanized field of study, directly associated with over five hundred skilled professions—many of which require college training. Because of this diversity, it has become necessary to try a new experiment—the Vocational Agriculture center. It is not the purpose of Vo-Ag to train young men to milk cows or plow fields, but rather to aid any young man going into agriculture, in the pursuit of his individual career. The Southington Vo-Ag Center, one of fourteen in Connecticut, will offer courses in forestry, greenhouse management, conservation, insect control, mechanical repair, and soil grading.

The Vo-Ag Center, going into operation later this year, will have two classrooms, a laboratory, shop, two greenhouses, cold frames, hotbeds, experimental plots, and an office. Students from the nearby towns of Cheshire, Wolcott, Bristol, New Britain, Plainville, Farmington, and Berlin will commute daily. The center will be designed to handle approximately eighty students. Three fulltime teachers, each specialized in some phase of the study program will instruct both day and night school classes. The Vo-Ag program has been designed to fulfill the greatest need for the greatest number, and in accordance there are plans to make agriculture a one period elective.

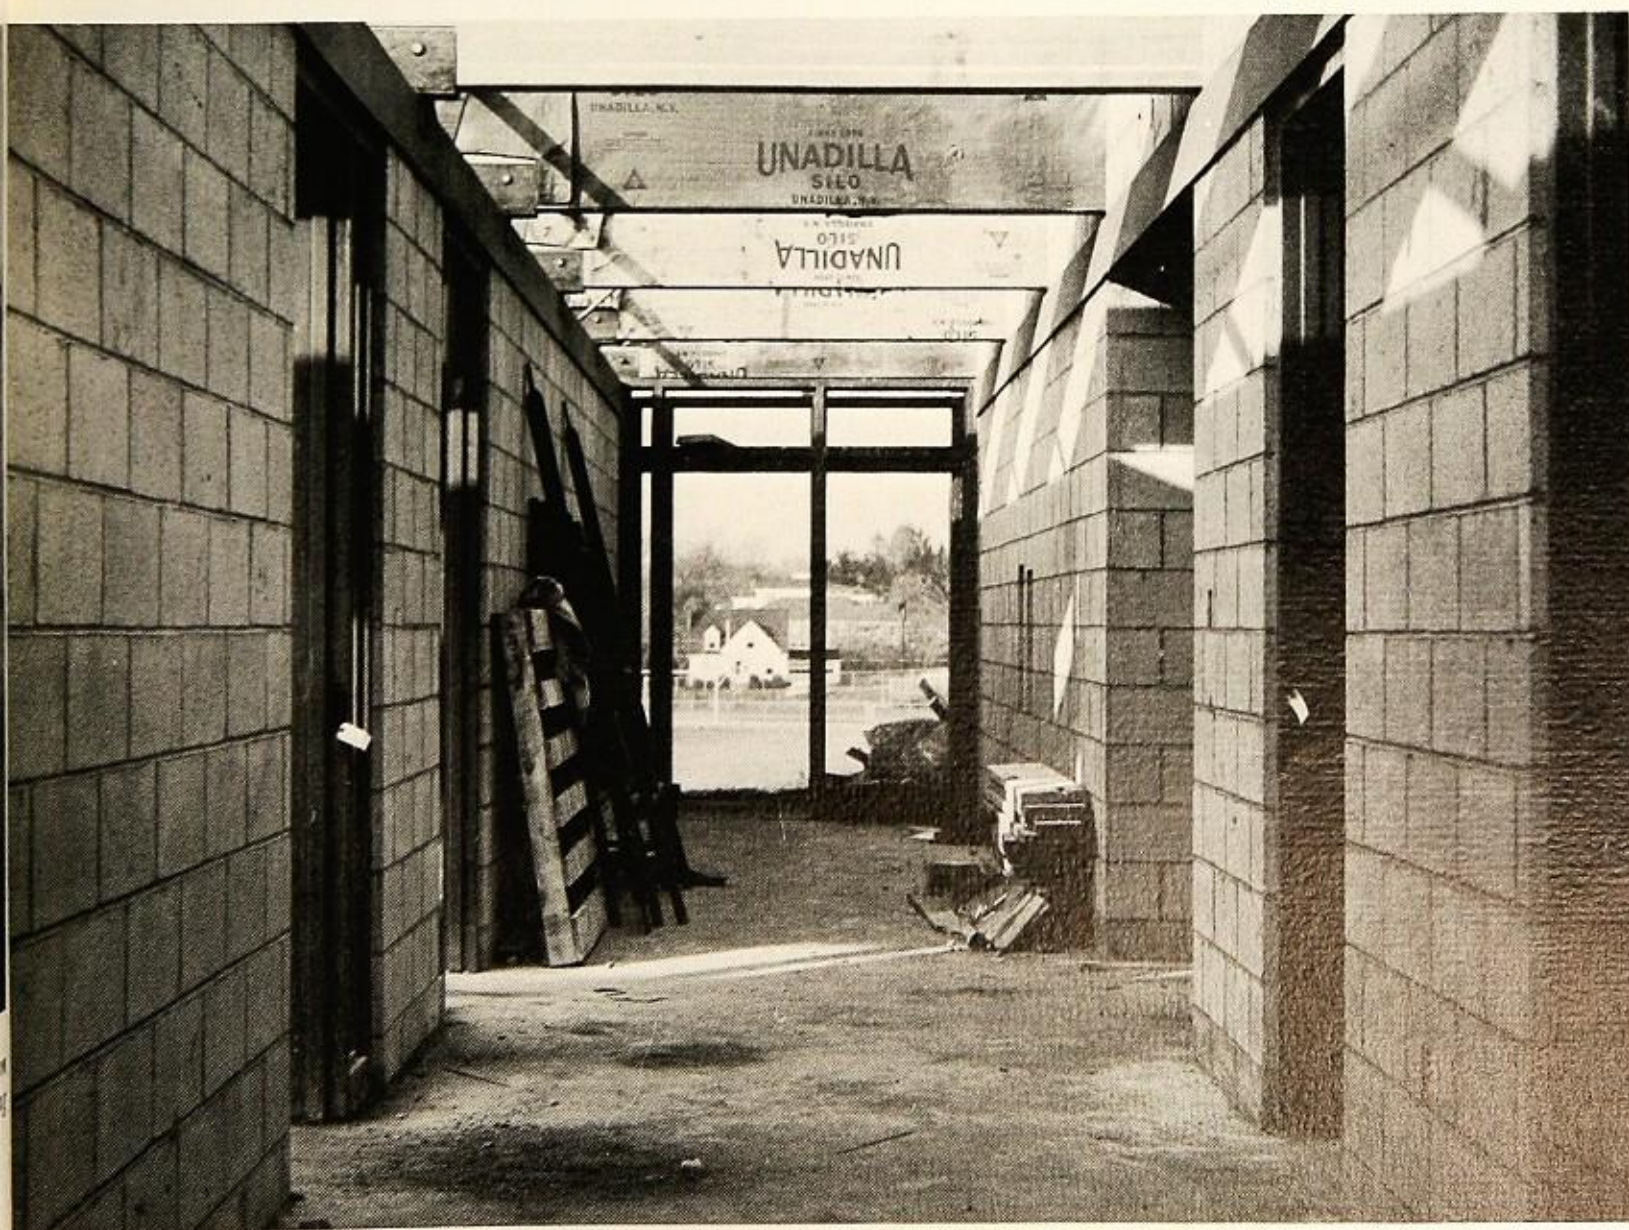

There has been a lot of talk about the Vo-Ag Center being built in Southington. Is it really necessary and worthwhile? In order to find out we interviewed Mr. Kenneth Farmer, who heads this project. He briefly outlined what it will accomplish. It will enable students to do such things as repair any piece of farming equipment or to conduct all types of seed and soil experiments. Most important it will provide a wide range and latitude of study for any student planning to enter any of the five hundred or so related vocations in agriculture and provide the basis for further study, particularly college. It will help push agriculture further into the Twentieth Century.

Mr. Farmer pauses to consider a question about Southington's Vo-Ag Center during an informal interview.

The building contractors look over the plans beneath the roof of the Center's greenhouse, adjoining the classrooms.

A future corridor lies beneath bare steel girders and between unfinished walls.

Physical Education, which is mandatory for all students, gives them the opportunity to develop athletic abilities under the guidance of an instructor and to learn the rudiments of many popular sports and athletic activities. Physical education for the boys begins in the fall with touch football and progresses to volleyball when the cold weather begins. This is followed by basketball and then a rigid program in physical fitness on gymnasium apparatus, which culminates in the Army Physical Fitness Test. As warm weather gradually returns, tennis starts, followed by a program in track and field activities. The year ends with softball. In most sports, teams are formed and compete for standings, developing an attitude toward good sportsmanship and lively competition.

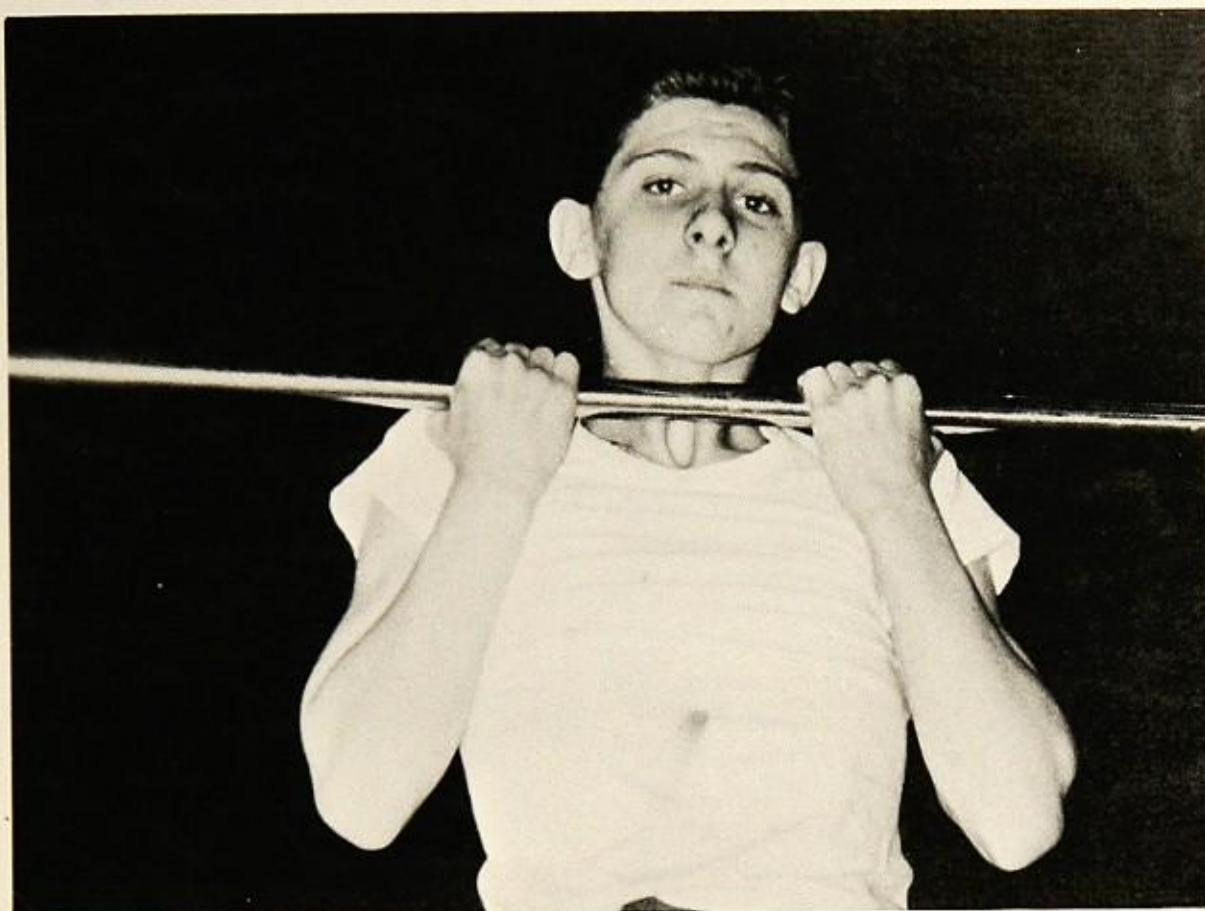

The main fall sport for girls is field hockey, a highly competitive and active sport. Winter activities include volleyball, basketball and badminton. In early spring, a mandatory physical fitness test is given. As the weather improves, girls go outside for tennis and softball. As well as participating in sports, girls are required to learn the rules and procedure for each game.

During the "Roaring Twenties" the Chronicle changed little in overall design or makeup. Like its predecessor of the decade before it was published by the Emblem as a "Senior Number". It had not yet been given the name Chronicle. The classbook pictured here was one of the first to have a photograph in it. The photo itself was of the Senior Class and Faculty which all told numbered 51 people. Other features were typical of any classbook and consisted of a Class Election, Prophecy, Presentation, Address, and Poem—well presented, and well written.

Class Poem

While list'ning by an open door,
I heard an old refrain:
"The years have quickly flown by us,
They'll never come again."

And in these words of deep dismay
I felt a slight regret;
Will we, in time, with all our years
Our memories forget?

Or is this our foundation,
Which as the rock holds firm;
To steady our decisions,
And guide us while we learn?

On this, our rock, we build our lives,
Our goals strive to attain,
And though we cannot always win,
We struggle not in vain.

These years have come and gone too fast,
But we should not feel sad,
For they have brought us great rewards,
Which through the years will last!

—Georgette Williams

The Class of 1964 Looks Back

In September of 1960 the class of 64 first entered the halls of Southington High School. Wide-eyed and ambitious, and just a little scared, we little "Frosh" wandered around the halls trying to find our ways for many weeks. The Seniors were really a big help—the Initiation Dance held for us really made us feel "welcomed" and from then on we became a real part of Southington High School.

At our first class meeting that year we were given a class advisor, Mr. Gerald Gingras. We also chose our class officers—Jeff Stetson was given the honor of presiding over this ambitious class, Debbie Carle was chosen Vice President, Carol Blanchette was secretary, and the job of guarding our money was given to Carmella Carrubba.

Curly Davis really swept we Freshmen off our little feet and we sold magazines like crazy. Unfortunately our efforts only resulted in second place. But that wasn't so bad considering the competition and besides we still had three more years.

In June we departed for our summer vacation, no longer the babies of the school.

In September we returned with renewed ambition and also with new class officers. This year our officers were: President, George Durr; Vice President, Bob Krafcik; Secretary, Lucille Giammatteo; and Treasurer, Lucille Santo. Mr. Gingras was still our advisor.

This year the Magazine Drive was received by us with even more enthusiasm than ever. Bound to redeem ourselves after last year's near win, we copped the first place prize money along with the accompanied honors. This money was certainly welcomed into our already growing treasury.

Betty Webb brought honor to herself and the school in her Sophomore, Junior, and Senior years by being chosen to participate in the All State Concert.

Our ring Committee was chosen in our Sophomore year to ensure our receiving the rings early in our Junior year. The committee, consisting of Tom Taylor, Paul Josephson, Dorothy Guccione, Laurel Garry, Jeff Stetson, Bob Krafcik, Lucille Santo, and Lucille Giammatteo, chose square rings with a raised "S" in the center.

At the end of our Sophomore year cheerleading tryouts were held. About forty hopefuls tried out. The lucky girls chosen for the squad were: Laurel Garry, Marion Pepi, Peggy Ahearn, Marsha Barber, Barbara Sullivan, and Sherri Murray.

Along with the demise of our sophomore year came farewells to our friend and class Advisor Mr. Gingras, who was leaving S.H.S.

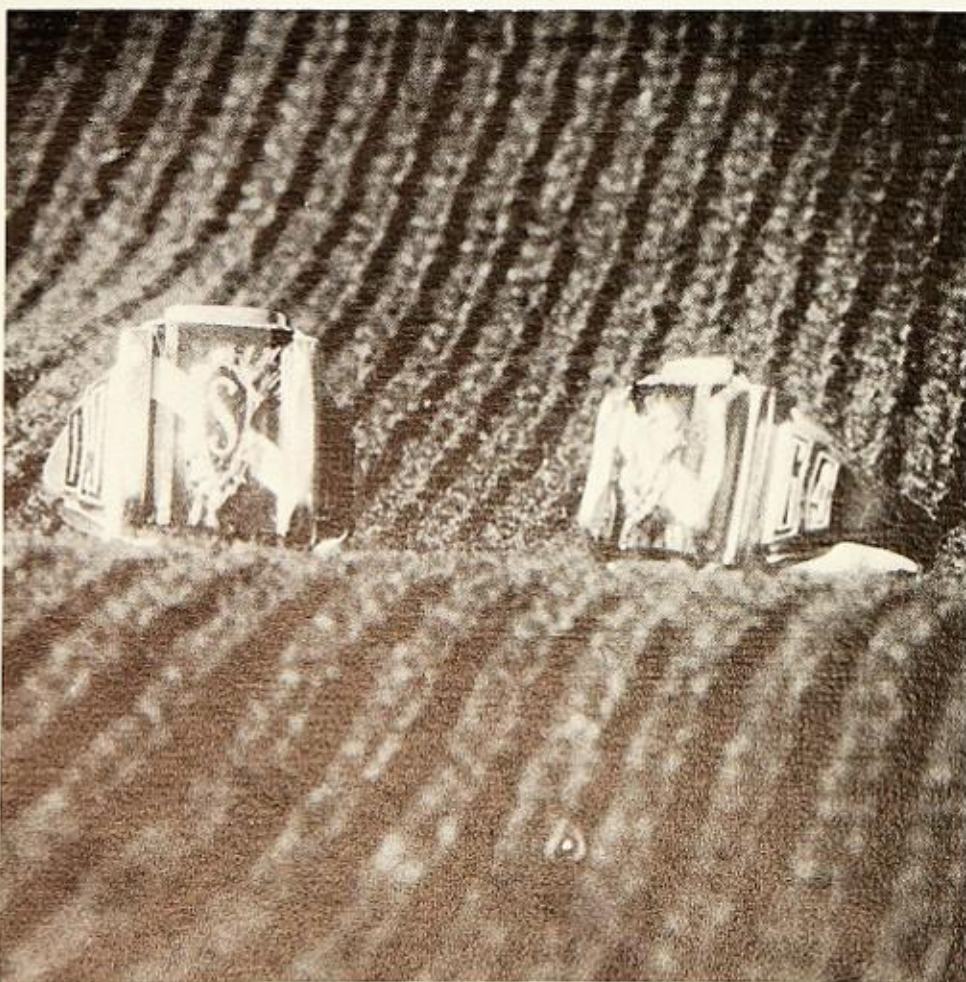

Our Junior year started off with a bang. First of all, we welcomed Mr. Robert DeBishop, as our new class advisor. We proud "upper-classmen" also chose class officers. Our President was still George Durr. Alan Dymond became our new Vice President. Lucille Giammatteo and Lucille Santo again were chosen Secretary and Treasurer, respectively.

Our first big undertaking as upperclassmen was the Junior Prom, "Moonlight and Roses." Lena Bouchard and Bob Krafcik were co-chairmen of this very beautiful and successful event. The gym was transformed into a beautiful garden in the moonlight. Our lovely queen was Cindy Standish, and Gary Banville was honored as king.

Rita Allaire, a pretty Junior from our class was crowned Homecoming Queen during the annual Homecoming weekend. Rita Earl, another Junior, was among the ten candidates seeking this very honored title.

On March 9, 1963 our Junior Class play, "Healthy, Wealthy, and Dumb" was presented under the able direction of Mr. DeBishop and the co-chairman, E. Malczysk and Jan Polka. The cast, headed by Bob Spellman and Carol Barneschi, contained such notables as: Jim Ross, Cathie Gammarino, Tony D'Angelo, Margaret Gardner, Larry Maurice, Sharon Tessman, Fred Tommasetti, and Ruth Potter. The play was received very enthusiastically and also was financially a large success. Dorothy Guccione, who did a hilarious washer-woman skit during the intermission was the hit of the show.

Class talent was again displayed in the Junior Recital, another undertaking enjoyed by all. Larry Maurice, who did a hilarious monologue of a man caught in a hotel room, won first prize. Other participants in the show included: Dorothy Guccione, Peggy Ahearn, Paul Josephson, Cathie Gammarino, and Diane Zoufaly.

With the money rolling in from everywhere, our class still was not satisfied. Our ingenious advisor, Mr. D. thought up the idea of selling pens with the basketball schedule written on them. Thusly the Juniors were seen patrolling the halls and selling their wares. This turned out to be a very successful project.

Cheerleading tryouts again were held in the spring and those senior girls chosen were Peggy Ahearn, Marion Pepi, Michele Foley, Laurel Garry, Marsha Barber, and Barbara Sullivan. The two girls chose as co-captains were Laurel Garry and Barbara Sullivan.

The tremendous task of editing our 1964 Chronicle was given to Dan Brookes, Lucille Santo, and Jan Polka.

Student Council elections were held in May. After a week of vigorous campaigning, Jeff Stetson emerged as President.

Jan Polka, Susan Farr, Jeff Stetson, Tom Taylor, Al Zipke, Paul Josephson, Randy Furst, and Dan Brookes were the honored Juniors chosen to attend Laurel Girls and Nutmeg Boys State.

Jim Ross and Carol Barneschi "pose" in a scene from the Junior Play.

Soon it was June and we all looked forward to our summer vacations. However, we were all eager to return in the fall as the "big shots" of the school.

Class officers were chosen. Bob Krafcik was our newly-chosen President. Barbara Sullivan was Vice President, and once again Lucille Giammatteo and Lucille Santo was Secretary and Treasurer.

Tryouts were held for our Senior Class play "The Case of the Missing Heirs" to be held on November 9th, 1963. The star studded cast was headed by Judy Doak and Jim Ross. Other cast members included Randy Furst, Sharon Christenson, Dorothy Guccione, Larry Maurice, Gail Buttrick, Cheryl Gelinas, Paul Fiondella, and Sam Feola. The co-chairman of this successful event were Greg Eckart and Jo Ann Kupcho.

The Christmas Dance, "The Night Before Christmas" was held on December 19, 1963. Laurel Garry and Paul Josephson served as co-chairman of this affair which was highlighted by festive decorations and live music.

On February 8, 1964, under the direction of Ronnie Sekellick and Dorothy Guccione our class held the annual Valentines Dance, and accompanying king and queen contest. Vigorous campaigning, which included pie throwing and can-can dancing was climaxed by the crowning of Dave Carbone and Peg Mancini as king and queen.

Our much awaited-for Senior Prom, "Fantasy of the Sea" was held on May 16, 1964, under the direction of Peg Ahearn and Al Zipke. The gym was transformed into a beautiful ocean scene.

Class Night was held at DePasquale's on May 30, 1964. Russ Szczepanik and Jan Osborn organized this unforgettable and enjoyable evening.

Four years at Southington High School are now past and it is hard to believe that we are finally alumni of SHS. We all look back on these years with many warm memories, yet we are now adults, ready to face the world and to take our places in life.

The thirties brought big changes in the Chronicle. It had ceased to be a part of the Emblem and now operated as a totally separate function under the direction of the class advisor. The cover of the classbook was larger, printed in color, and bound to the book by elaborate twine. The biggest change however came in photography. All Seniors had individual pictures placed beside their write-ups. For the first time the entire classbook was done in offset on high quality paper.

Government by the Students

The Student Council is an elected organization which represents the student body and promotes the best interest of the school. The council serves as a link between students and administration.

Senior members and officers read the morning announcements and also participate in the annual Youth Day. The most exciting activity is the school wide election of Council officers which climaxes a highly spirited campaign.

Serving the School and the Community

SECOND ROW: Mr. Triano (Advisor), T. Nigro, B. Hall, W. Shaw, D. Jones, K. Kopka, A. Dymond, R. Potrepka, A. Zipke, A. Scafino, D. Carbone.

The Key Club is a Kiwanis sponsored service group. Formed four years ago, this active club has brought much honor upon itself and the school by its many activities.

Under the leadership of Mr. Triano, the Club has flourished into an efficient organization. Along with doing their part in making the high school better they also held car washes and sold S.H.S. sweat shirts to supplement their treasury.

Ed Malczyk, Key Club president, conducts a general meeting of the club.

Bringing Honor to Themselves and the School

The National Honor Society is a group of hard working, dedicated individuals who excel in scholarship, service, leadership, and character. To be eligible for membership a student must attain an average of eight-five percent or better throughout his high school years. Membership consists of the upper ten percent of the Senior Class. The object of this society is to create an enthusiasm for scholarship, to stimulate a desire to render service, to promote worthy leadership and to encourage the development of character in the students.

We are justly proud of these scholars and their worthy advisor, Mrs. Churchill, who has worked hard with students such as these for many years.

Society member Georgette Williams lights one of the four candles signifying either character, scholarship, leadership, or service, the four attributes of NHS members inducted at this assembly last January.

The Reverend Alfred Bernadt addresses the group at the January induction of NHS members.

Constantly Informing the Student Body

The school newspaper, a winner in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association for a number of years, lends itself to the town as well as our school. This year, it has done well in covering current events in the world and school. The Emblem owes much to Miss Shorey, their capable advisor, for the fine job she has done with the entire staff. The Emblem has helped promote the many activities pursued at Southington High School.

Career Training in the Teaching Field

The Future Teachers of America, under the direction of Miss King, is designed to acquaint students with the teaching profession. Members of the organization work toward developing a readiness in preparing for a college education. They serve as teacher's aides, and they have had various speakers at their meetings. These speakers help acquaint them with the profession.

The Southington High Future Teachers Club is designated the E. Mildred Bedford Chapter in honor of one of the most dedicated teachers in this town.

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS

Preparing to Manage the Families of Tomorrow

The Future Homemakers of America is an organization designed to unite state groups in the development of better home and family living.

Under the direction of Mrs. Hallet these girls work to increase opportunities which help to develop leadership and intelligent participation in our society. They work together to promote better family life for themselves and their families.

Mrs. Hallet helps FHA members in preparing desert at the FHA banquet last March.

Advising club members is Mr. Farmer, advisor to the FFA.

FUTURE FARMERS

Learning the Role of the Farm and the Farmer

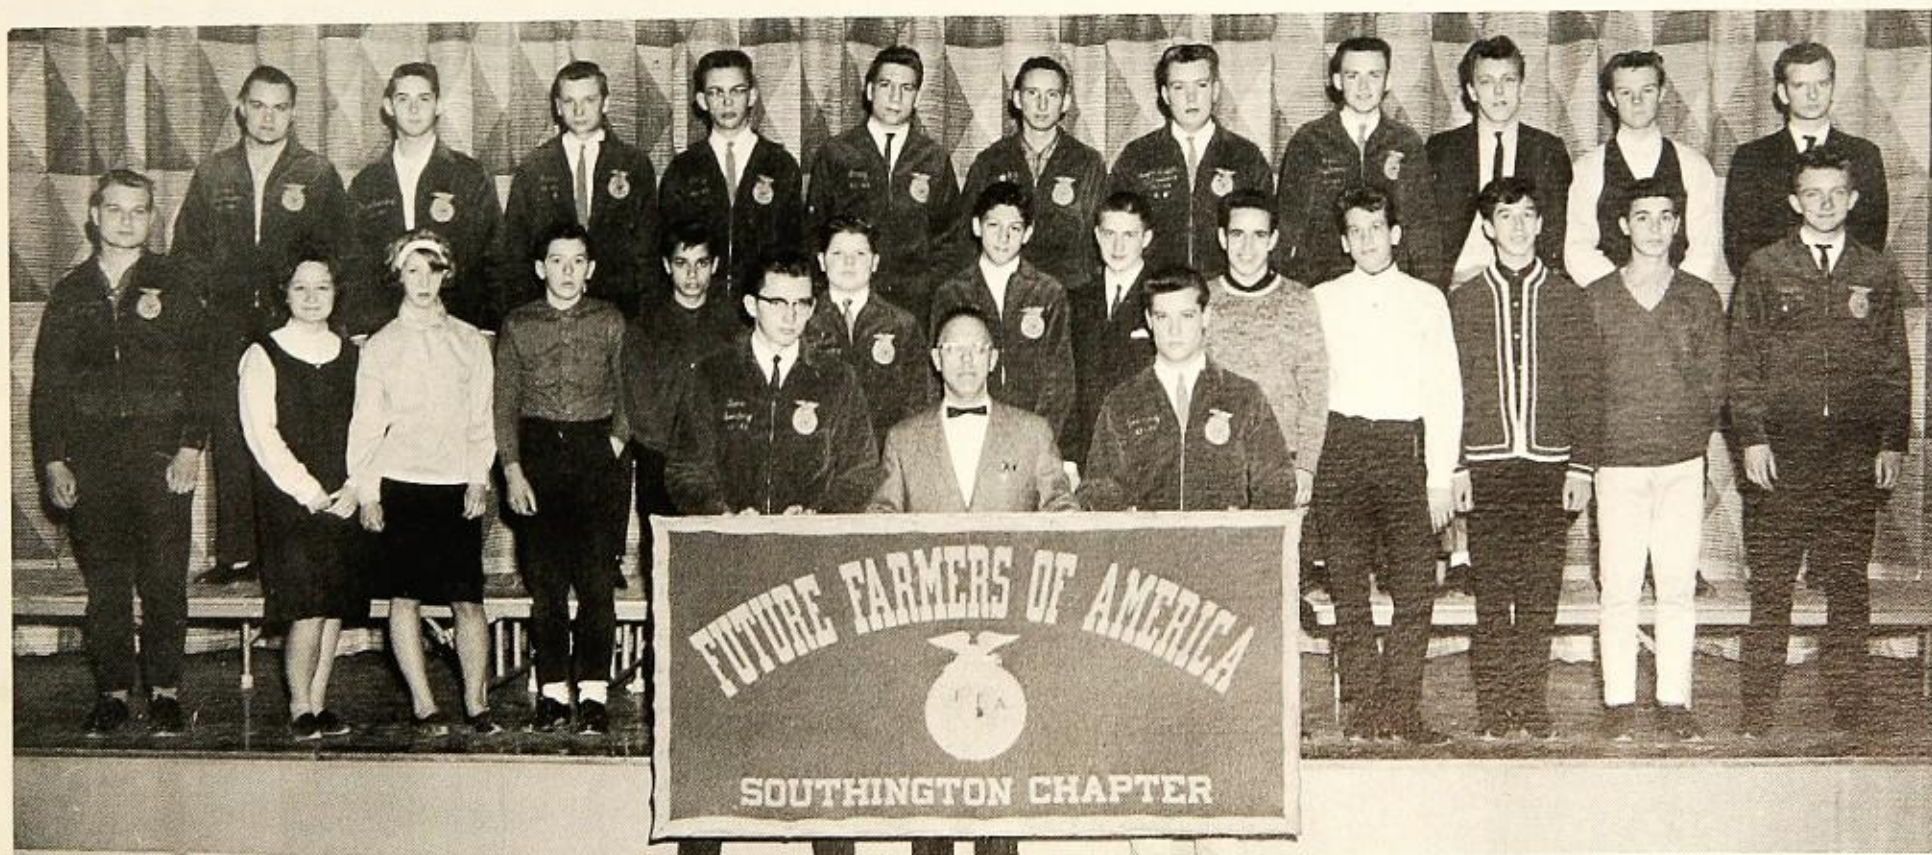

The Future Farmers of America is a national organization of, by, and for those students studying vocational agriculture in public secondary schools.

Its aims are to develop competent, aggressive, rural, and agricultural leadership to strengthen the confidence of farm boys and young men in themselves and their work, and to encourage members to improve the farm home and its surroundings.

The Future Farmers look forward to the many facilities which they will come to use in the new Vocational Agriculture Center situated at the southern end of the school.

Practical philosophy reflecting a spirit and sincerity that shows the true view point of the farm youth is demonstrated by our motto:

Learning to do,	Earning to live,
doing to learn.	living to serve.

From Headaches to Transfusions

The Future Nurses of America, under the direction of Mrs. Day, is an organization aimed at acquainting interested students with the basic fundamentals and requirements of nursing and other areas of the Medical field. During the year, speakers from the College Nursing Instruction, Registered Nursing, Licensed Practical Nursing, X-Ray Technology, and other areas offer members an opportunity to learn about each individual field from people who are directly involved.

Membership is open to all students. They are able to participate in the Volunteer Service Programs at neighboring hospitals and the Red Cross Bloodmobiles.

The Drama Club arouses and activates the dramatic potentials of its members. They are dramatically stimulated by films and field trips. The members are afforded opportunities to display their dramatic talents in public and private performances.

Under the direction of a nine-member executive board and the Club advisor, Mr. Lallo, the Drama Club is proud of the success which it has attained.

Trend Toward Armchair Traveling

The Spanish Club of Southington High, advised by Mr. Solomita, was organized two years ago. Its business meetings are usually conducted in Spanish, and programs vary from Pinata parties to slides and current events to discussions. Its main function is to better acquaint students of Spanish with the culture of Spanish-speaking countries.

Shown here is a special planning committee of the Spanish Club.

The Girls Leadership Club is composed of Senior girls who meet weekly with Mrs. Brackley to learn the fundamental skills necessary for various sports. The girls assist Mrs. Brackley and Mrs. Prevost in their gym classes by taking attendance, leading exercises, and teaching the underclassmen the basic fundamentals of sports. Their major project is to co-sponsor the annual Bundle Drive with the Boys' Leadership Club.

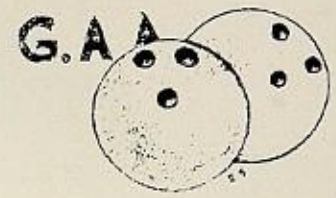

Participating in the badminton matches in the Girls' Leadership program are Donna Smith, foreground, and Carol Barneschi, back.

Promoting Athletic Activities among Girls

The GAA is an organization which sponsors all girls' athletic programs. The purpose is to promote leadership, provide wholesome recreation and induce good sportsmanship in the student of S.H.S. Under the patient and able guidance of Mrs. Brackley and Mrs. Prevost, our advisors, sports have provided a wonderful diversion for all girls.

The Bowling Club has been in existence in Southington High School for about twelve years. The bowling club, a recreational activity, is aimed toward giving young people an activity which they will be able to enjoy throughout their adult life. They participate in various contests throughout the year.

The club advisor, Mrs. Prevost, has devoted much time and effort to the Bowling Club of 1964.

Filling the Air With Music

Under the fine direction of Mr. Conrad A. Gozzo our minstrels have given us many hours of enjoyable music. The minstrels sing for numerous occasions that arise during the course of the year. Such events as the Christmas Concert, the Spring Concert, and the annual graduation bring this talented group before the public. It is indeed an honor to become a member of the Minstrels at S.H.S.

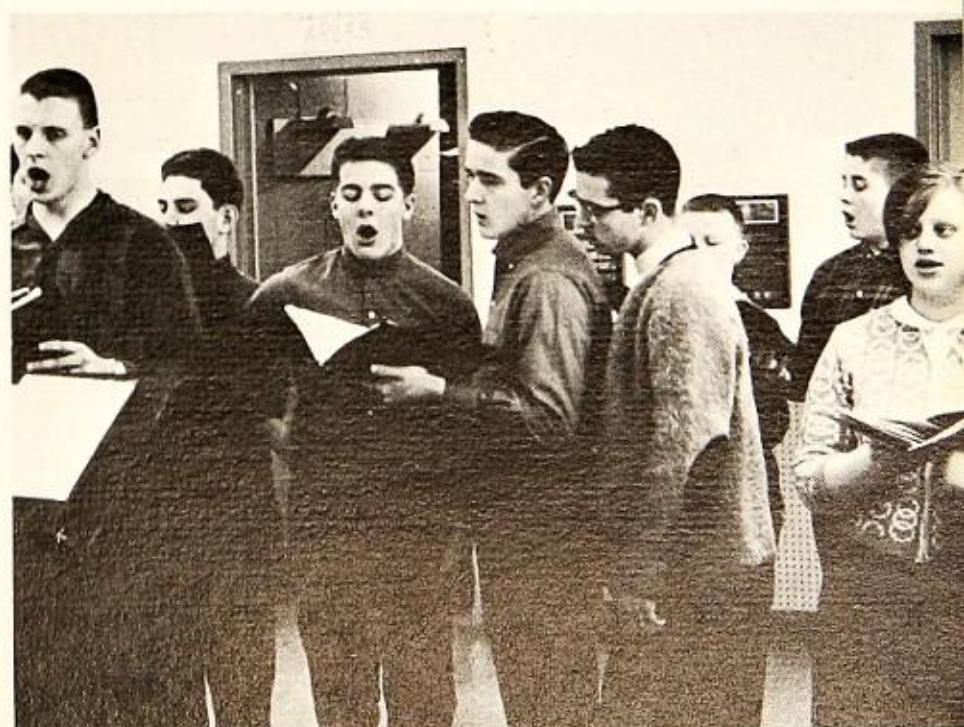

FIRST ROW L. to R.: P. Jaques, M. A. Agnello, L. Warner, K. Kitchen, D. Carruth, J. Osborn, K. Weldon, A. Osborn, E. Farr, C. Garland, M. Potrepka, M. Brown, Mr. Gozzo, Advisor; M. Folick, P. Cabata, L. Smart, G. Klein, Susan Farr, accompanist on the piano, rehearses with the Minstrels.

The Minstrels hold a rehearsal for their annual winter concert.

Hard Practice, Long Drills, Precision Marching

The Majorettes are girls who were organized to help promote school spirit. As their advisor, Mrs. Aldieri has spent many hours arranging routines for them to practice. The Majorettes have marched to the home football games, in parades, and at assemblies. They have also performed at special functions such as the American Legion Carnival.

The majorettes, under the direction of Pam Stetson, break into a difficult formation.

Leading the Student Body at Games and Rallies

The Southington High School cheerleaders are a group of Junior and Senior girls who lead the student body in cheers during the football and basketball seasons. Win or lose, these girls are always present to add pep and enthusiasm to the game. Twice a week the cheerleaders practice vigorously for perfection and unity.

Our cheerleaders have always been an asset to the school and we hope that they will continue to live up to the standards they have set.

This year's Senior cheerleaders are, bottom, Barbara Sullivan, Michele Foley, and Peg Ahearn; middle, Laurel Garry and Marion Pepi; top, Marsha Barber.

Cheerleaders, FIRST ROW L. to R.: M. Foley, B. Sullivan, L. Garry, M. Pepi, M. Barber, D. Ahearn. SECOND ROW: M. Phillips, D. Cardinale, A. DellaBitta, G. DeBisschop, K. Dutton, J. Borowski.

The 1964 Chronicle . . .

We stated in the foreword of this book that it was a year of change and transition for the Chronicle. By now this must be quite obvious to you. You are probably wondering why it has been done in such a manner. The answer is simple—we have been trying to create something which Southington High School has never had before—a yearbook. It has had many fine and outstanding classbooks, and at times even a slight hint of a yearbook, although it could not be rightfully called one.

What differences are there between a true yearbook and that which has been incorrectly called a yearbook for the past number of years? The differences are many. To begin with, a yearbook is something published annually which fully reports the events and happenings of the year for the entire school and student body; not just the senior class. It is the record of the progress during the school year made by its faculty, student body, athletic teams, clubs, and other organizations. Of course, a major factor in this progress is the graduating class, which is the main feature of any classbook or yearbook. Yet the coverage given to this graduating class has become excessive. It has grown to include such items as Senior Statistics, Senior Class Polls, and the Class Wills and Prophecies of long ago. To a yearbook, as we see and define it, these things add nothing, but as they are carried over from year to year, begin to detract from it.

You may find many things in this book which you might now be able to say do not belong in a yearbook as we have discussed it to be. This is because the changes which we advocate are of a major proportion and cannot all be accomplished in just one year or in one book. We have only started this transition. It is up to future staffs to follow our path. We ask that they do so not just by copying the same things year after year, but by improving and eliminating things which exist, by comparing their books with others more modern and advanced, and by working with future staffs, trying possibly to further bring the Chronicle out of its dark age of tradition. If they fail to do this, then the 1964 Chronicle will stand alone as being the closest that we have ever been to a real yearbook—and the closest we will ever be. They must make their own choice, just as we have made ours.

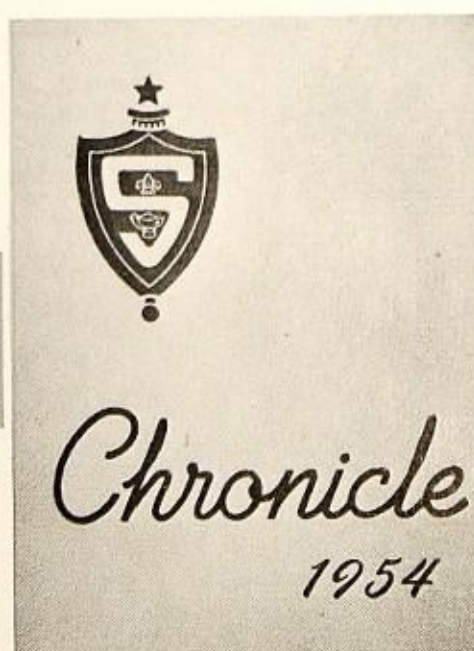

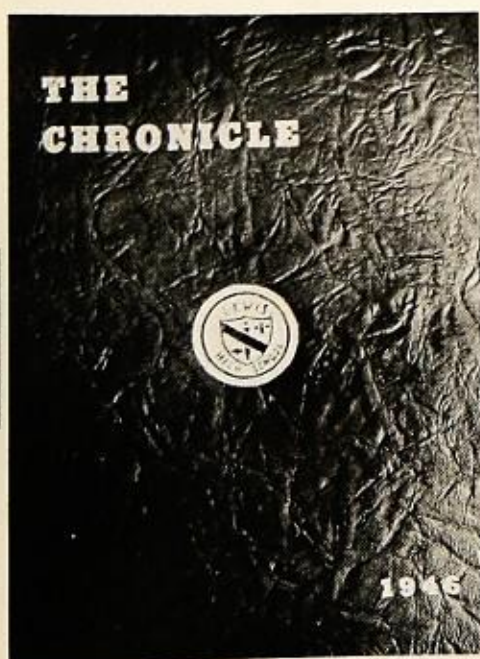

... A Decisive Experiment

... The beginnings of a true yearbook

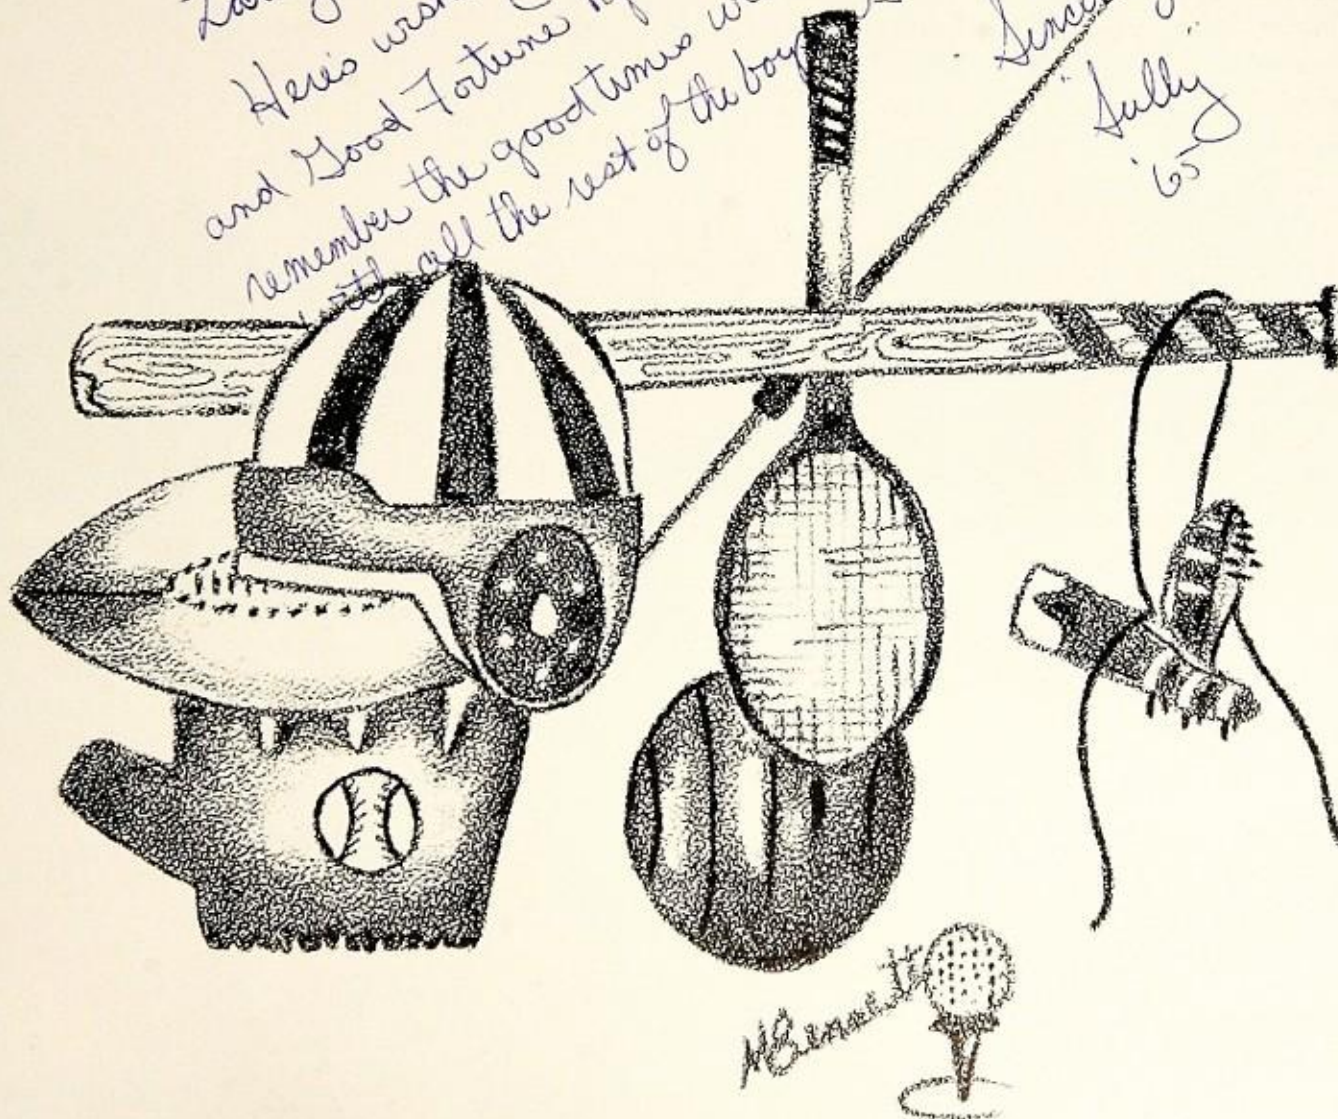

World War Two brought more changes and improvements in the yearbook. The Chronicle was given a hard board padded cover and glossy paper. More pictures were added and type styles were varied.

In addition to the formal Senior section two other sections, Sports and Activities, were added. It became necessary to break up the three sections with divided pages. Art work was added to the yearbook. The Chronicle of the Forties was a true classbook which grew more elaborate with each successive year. Yet by the start of the Fifties, there was a noticeable transition toward the beginnings of a yearbook.

Larry,
 Here's wishing you all the Happiness and Good Fortune you deserve. Always remember the good times we've had in school with all the rest of the boys. Good Luck.

Sincerely,
 Sully

Sports

Football

Southington High School's rampaging Blue Knights football team stormed over nine opponents last fall en route to a brilliant undefeated season. Only a heartbreaking 14-14 tie with Sacred Heart of Waterbury marred an otherwise spotless slate.

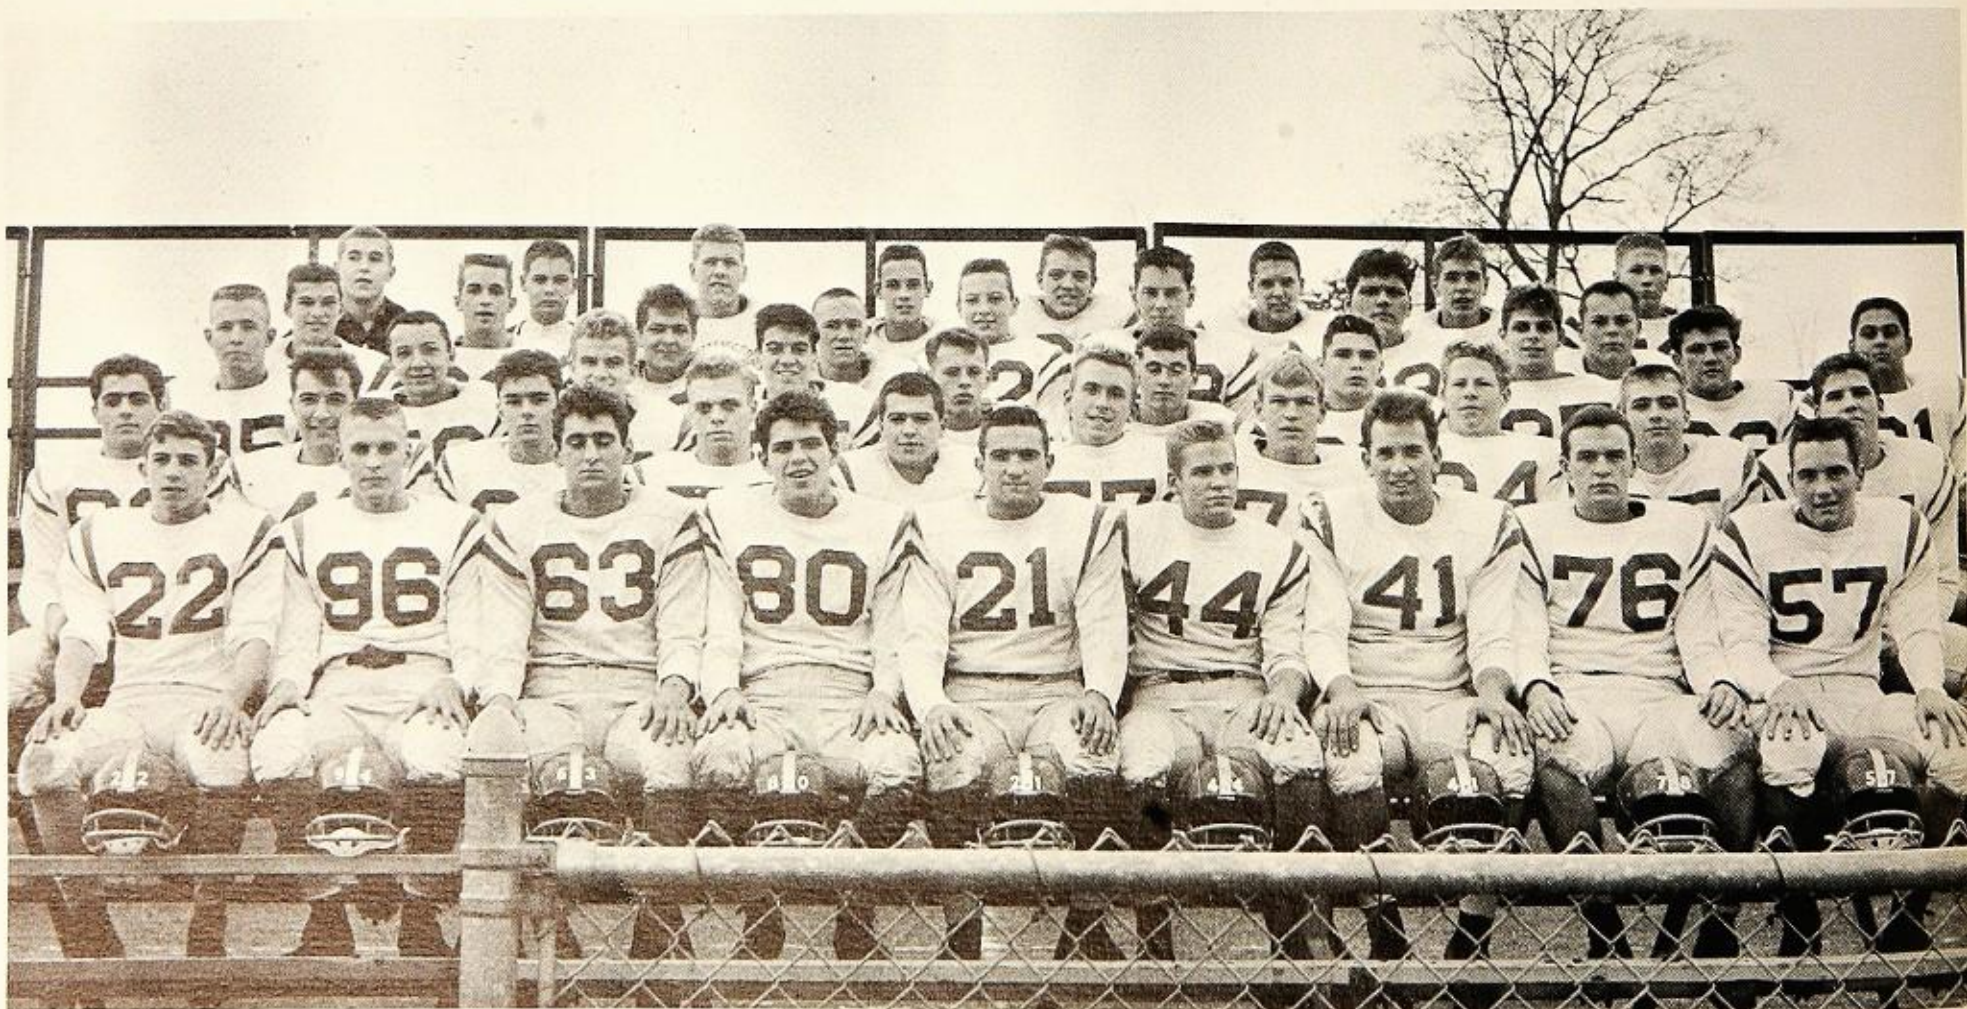

Utilizing a concentrated ground attack, Southington pummeled Plainville in the annual Thanksgiving Day classic to cap the school eleven's most successful season in half a dozen years. For the third consecutive season the Knights were singled out as one of the three best teams in their class in the State. Other honors included the Central Valley Conference title and the selection of halfback George Durr and middle line-backer Mike Cardinale for all-state.

Few SHS teams will ever surpass the exploits of the 1963 gridders. The Knights worked hard, played well, and exhibited good sportsmanship at all times. Coach Joe Orsene, his staff and all the players must be congratulated for continuing the tradition of great football teams at Southington High School.

Halfback Durr follows Quarterback Scott enroute to a large gain.

Zalaski kicks off after a Blue Knight tally.

One of the keys to a winning season — a defense like this one.

Basketball

Close games. Hard fought games. Exciting games. But almost all were losses. In the most harrowing season ever undergone, Coach Walt Lozoski's basketball team compiled its worst record in the history of the school: three wins and seventeen losses. But despite the record and despite a sixteen game losing streak, the Blue Knights never gave up. They battled to within one point of arch-rival Plainville; they came within inches of defeating Glastonbury and Newington; and they actually overcame Woodrow Wilson, a CVC powerhouse.

Throughout the season Southington was up against taller and better shooters. The Knights were also handicapped by injuries and illness that affects the play of the ballclub. In addition, several pleas to set up an organized basketball program in town—to teach elementary students the fundamentals of the game—continued to be ignored.

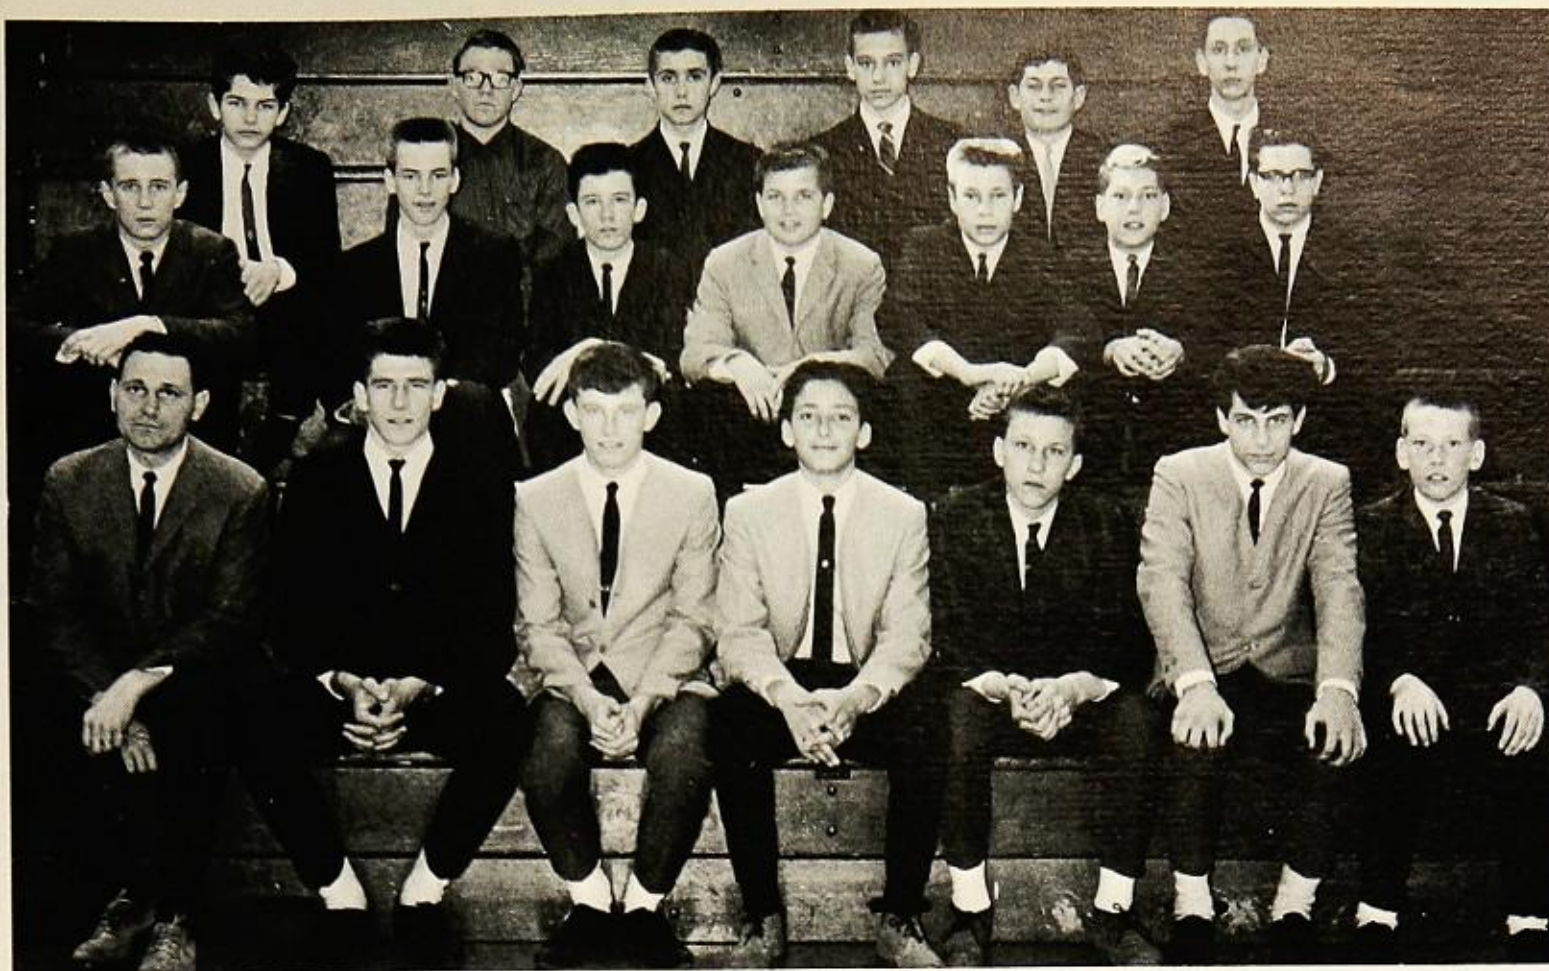

No one likes to lose and so it is a hard thing to play for a losing team. But no player complained and no player ever stopped trying. Coach Walt Lozoski, Coach John Fontana, the varsity and the jayvees should be highly commended for their efforts.

Baseball

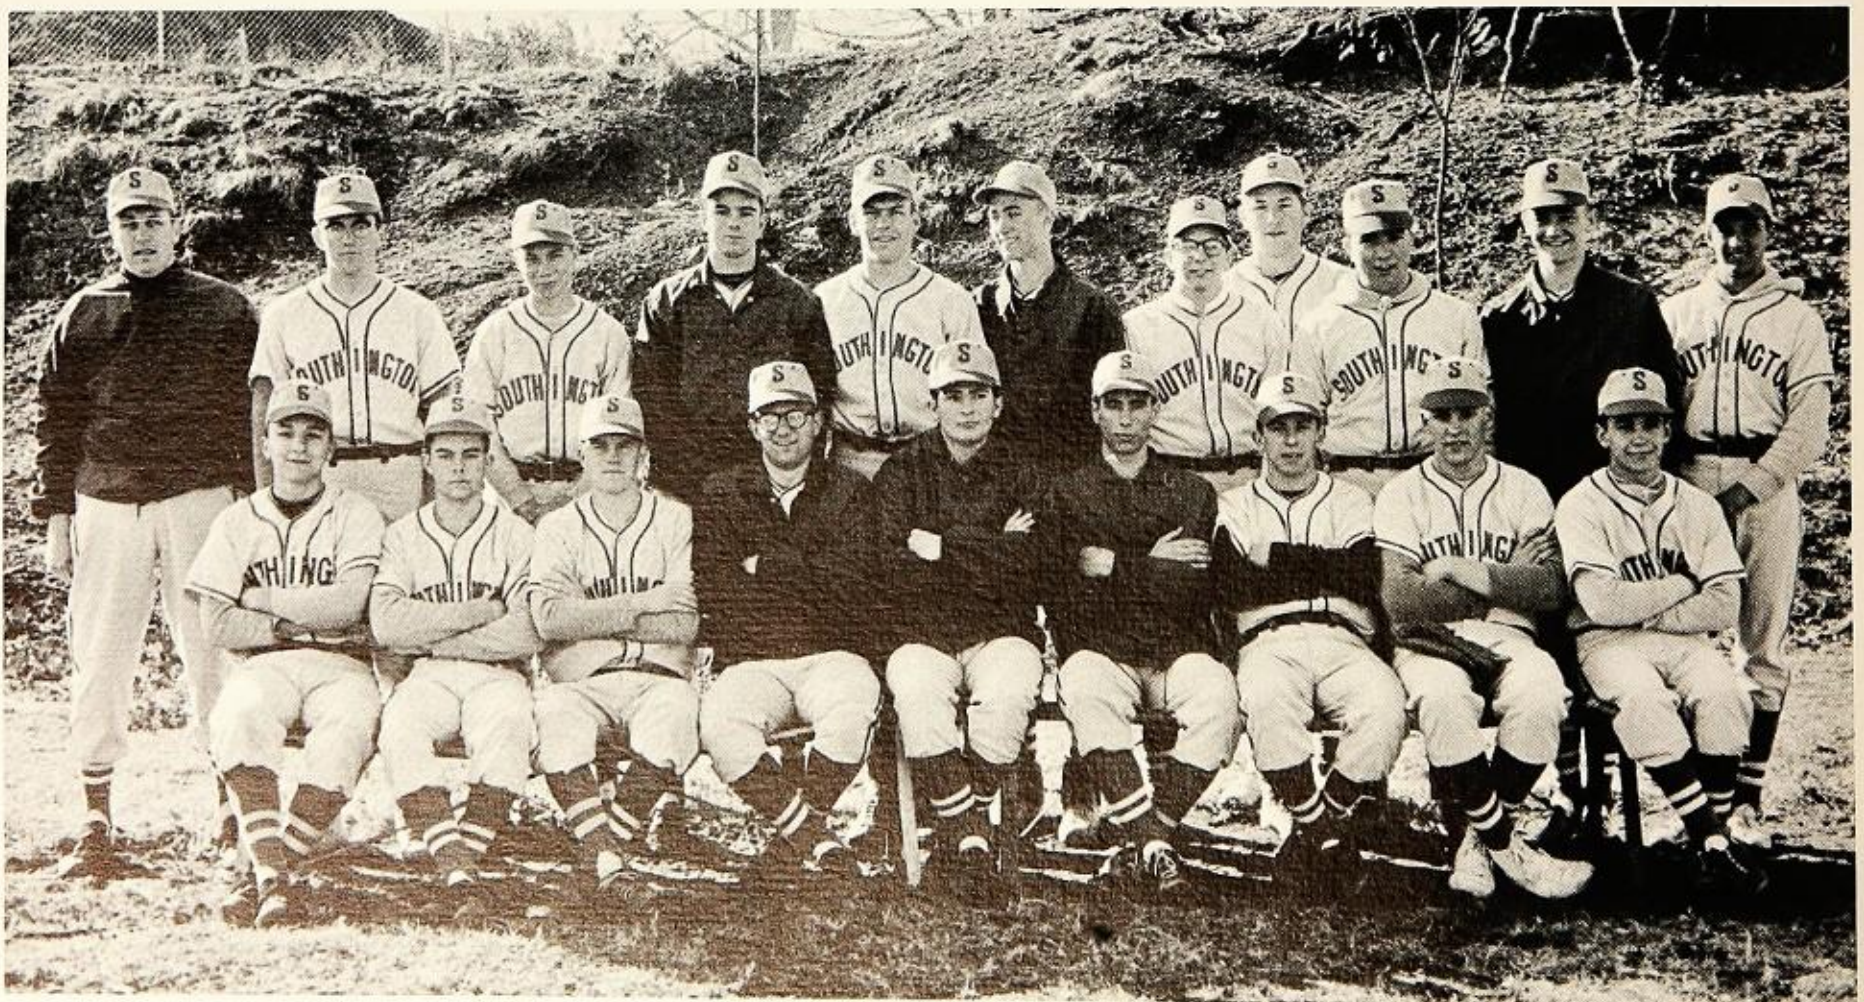

Larry, really sweet to keep all my friends alive.

The word was out that Southington High's baseball team was going to have a big season this spring. The question was: How big? With eight full-time starters returning, the likelihood that Coach John Fontana's Blue Knights were going to have a banner year was very probable indeed. Two of Southington's three Central Valley League all-stars from 1963 were back: infielder George Durr and first baseman Ed Lucier. Only hurler Bob Smedley, who graduated last June, was no longer with the club.

The Knights won 12 games in 1963 but the slogan was "more in '64" this spring. Practices began early and ran late during March in preparation for the April opener. Congratulations to Coach John Fontana, Coach Joe Orsene and to the ballplayers who did their best and gave their all for the team.

Track

Optimism bloomed for Southington High School's Blue Knight tracksters this spring. Some old reliables and promising new-comers indicated that SHS might be in store for a top notch season.

Although the track and field squad finished with a modest 5-5 record in 1963, the outlook for 1964 seemed somewhat brighter as the team prepared for its opener. Practices were progressing on schedule, the team members determined to do their best.

Under the direction of rookie coach Nakoneczny who joined the faculty last fall, observers are sure that the Knights will do their utmost to bring glory to SHS.

Cross Country

Cross Country is a running sport. The meet distances cover on the average two and one half to three miles over hilly country roads in every sort of weather. The sport demands speed, strength, and endurance. To run cross-country you must have dedication. Each night during the Fall you must run from one to two miles and exercise from one to two hours. This years cross-country team lead by co-captains Russ Szczepanik, and Ronnie Sekellick ended up with an envianble 7-3 record. It placed sixth in the state and second in the Central Valley League.

Southington	36	Plainville	23
Southington	30	Cheshire	28
Southington	23	St. Thomas	33
Southington	19	Lyman Hall	42

It takes practice like this to build up the runner's endurance.

Golf has been an organized sport at Southington High for only four years and yet within that short time Coach Walt Lozoski has fashioned a champion team. Last year's team headed by Tom Nigro and powered by freshmen and sophomores copped the Central Valley League Title with an 8-2 record. The prospects for the 1964 season are even better—all of last year's starters will be back this year, and with the addition of a few freshmen Southington may have its first undefeated Golf team.

Field hockey is the main sport for girls in the fall. Under the leadership of Donna Smith and Carm Carrubba, the co-captains for 1963-1964, the team comprised of twenty members worked hard to have a winning season, but had to put up with a 3-3 record.

Other than regular games, S.H.S. held two playdays with schools of the surrounding area.

During the winter, basketball is the main sport. Even though the girls wound up with a 3-6 overall record, they played a hard season. Jan Mann and Carm Carrubba were the outstanding performers of the season.

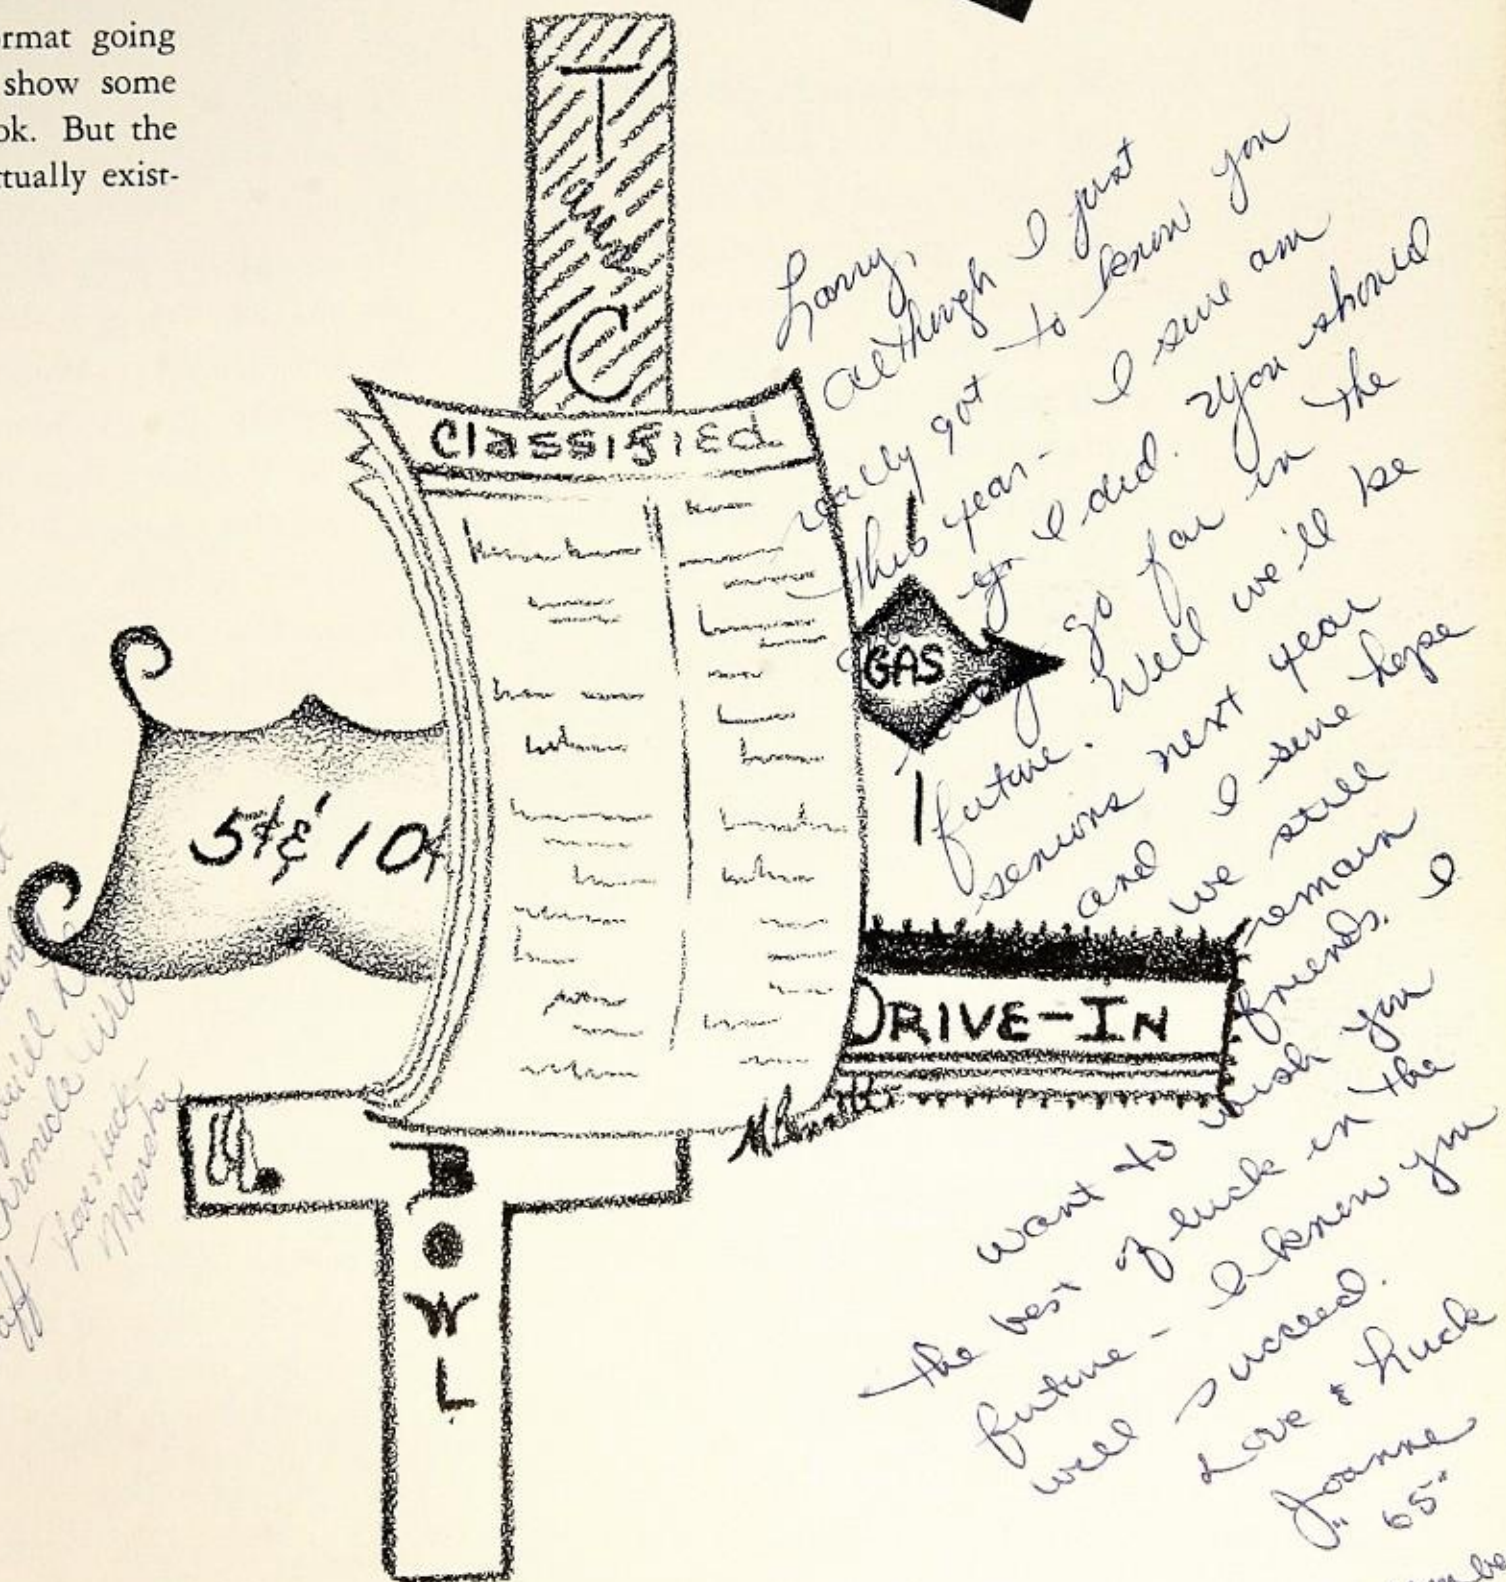

Coaching both of these teams is Mrs. Gladys Brackley, assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Prevost. Both of these people were most generous in giving up their time to devote it to the girls and they deserve a lot of credit.

In the Fifties, the Chronicle was finally the yearbook that most of us are familiar with now, the Sixties so far following the same pattern. Actually the book was still directed mainly toward the graduating class. This was the era of the padded cover and cartoon drawing. Sometimes popular fads would show up in the book.

Yearbooks kept this general format going into the present decade, but did show some trends toward being a true yearbook. But the true yearbook was still far from actually existing.

Long, although I just really got to know you this year - I sure am going to go far in the future. Well we'll be seniors next year and I sure hope we still remain friends. I want to wish you the best of luck in the future - I know you will succeed.

Love & Luck
